Rule 130
Esther Herranz García (PPE)

Subject: Single market in transport services and cash management

National rules in some Member States are hindering the establishment of a single market in transport services and cash (notes and coins) management. This is making it difficult for companies in some Member States to set up and operate in other EU countries, leading to higher prices whose effects are felt indirectly in the end by members of the public.

Has the Commission considered establishing common rules that guarantee free competition between companies and uphold the single market in transport services and cash management?
