Electronic communication products for the 2009 European Elections

The communication products for the 2009 European Elections include all the visual communication products which can be downloaded from this site. These products have been created as aids in the publicity campaign for the elections to the European Parliament that are due to take place between 4 and 7 June 2009.

Use of these communication products is authorised provided that:

- such use is related to the context of the European elections,
- such use is not linked directly or indirectly to a commercial purpose,
- such use is in no way associated with data or information that is of a racist, anti-Semitic, xenophobic, revisionist, defamatory, insulting, obscene, pornographic or paedophile nature or tending to incite violence, especially racial violence; likely by its very nature to undermine respect for the dignity of the human being, equal rights of women and men and the protection of children and adolescents; inviting minors to commit illicit or dangerous acts; encouraging others to commit crimes or offences or to consume prohibited substances; inciting suicide; inciting discrimination or hatred of a person or a group of persons on grounds of their origin, membership or non-membership of an ethnic group, a nation, a group, or a specific race or religion; excusing certain crimes (in particular, murder, rape, war crimes and crimes against humanity); contrary to public policy or to accepted principles of morality;

and more specifically for the '2009 European Elections' logo, provided that:

- such use complies with the specifications set out in the manual that goes with the logo.

In all cases, the European Parliament reserves the right to prohibit the use of its communication products in any circumstances where this use might be harmful to it or of an inappropriate nature.

Use of these communication products without an objection being expressed by the European Parliament shall not imply Parliament's agreement to such use nor shall it imply any endorsement or sponsorship by Parliament of such use.

These communication products are original creations which are protected by law and for which all rights are reserved. They may not be registered as a trademark or brand name or under any other title. No use by third parties, even with the agreement of the European Parliament, shall confer on the third party any right whatsoever over the logo.
