

*Delegation for relations with the Mashreq countriesDMAS_PV(2011)0908_1*MINUTES of the meeting of 8 September 2011, from 08.45 to 09.45
Brussels

The meeting opened at 08.55 on Thursday, 8 September 2011, with Saïd El Khadraoui (Vice-Chair) in the chair.

1. Adoption of draft agenda (PE 469.651)

The draft agenda was adopted.

2. Adoption of the minutes of the meeting of 13 July 2011 (PE 462.206)

The minutes were adopted.

3. Chair's announcements

The Chair announces the visit of a Delegation from the Lebanese Parliament on 11/12 October.

The Mashreq Delegation will wait for the announcement of the electoral calendar in Egypt before fixing the date for the planned DMAS Working Group visit (initially 24-28 November according to the annual programme).

4. Recent developments in Syria and EU reactions - Exchange of views with Mr Hugues MINGARELLI, Managing Director Middle East & Southern Neighbourhood, External Action Service

Mr. Mingarelli presents the sanctions the EU has enacted since May including an arms embargo, a travel ban, a freeze of assets, and the partly suspension of bilateral cooperation. The latest set of sanctions comprises an import embargo on Syrian oil. All those who benefit from the regime or support it, may face a freeze of assets and a travel ban. Reflexions on a possible ban on European investments in the oil sector are underway, but the objective is to avoid measures that hit the population. Member States are relatively united on the Syrian file.

The EU has tried in vain to engage Syria on reforms. On request the EU could help with drafting a new constitutions, new electoral laws, developing free media, NGO, associations, and trade unions as it currently does in other Arab Spring countries. On 18 August, the US and EU called Assad to step aside. The EU is now coordinating with the Arab League, the Turkish MFA and at UN level. The EAS has been approached by Syrian opposition forces, but Mr. Mingarelli pointed to the difficulty of assessing their representativity. Within the EAS reflexions on the post-Assad period are underway.

The Members' questions focus on the possible EU offer to Syria to promote dialogue, reform and transition in case the regime stays in place (Vajgl), on the possibility of escalating sanctions and concerns about a unified EU approach to Syria (Obiols), the attitude of minorities towards the regime and the EEAS' interlocutors amongst the opposition (El-Khadraoui).

5. Egypt: main challenges ahead - Exchange of views with Mr Marc FRANCO, Head of EU Delegation to Egypt

Egyptian elections might start mid-November and will be staggered over two weeks plus two other weeks for the second round to allow electoral supervision by the judges. Results are expected by mid-December. Presidential elections could take place early 2012. While three laws have been decreed on political rights, the People's Assembly, and the Shura Council, the law on electoral districts is still pending. Mr. Franco describes the electoral system as very complex combining a majority and a proportional system with 50% of seats reserved to workers and peasants. The Military Council ruled against any formal international observation mission, but would accept some kind of presence through the Embassies.

The upcoming elections should enable the transfer of political debate from Tahrir Square into Parliament. Yet, the revolutionaries are still reluctant to this. Mr. Franco labels the political landscape as confusing. On a recent visit Martin Schulz had contacts with a new Social Democrats Party which actually is rather liberal. The main antagonist forces are the Egyptian Bloc of "secular" parties versus the Democratic Alliance (Muslim Brothers, Nasserists, and oddly the traditionally secular Wafd party). Beyond the political and institutional reforms, Mr. Franco underlines that economic recovery and social justice remain the key challenges for Egypt.

While deplored the relative absence of political debate other than on a secular State in Egypt, Mr. Franco hints to the major role the European political families can play in engaging a debate on economic and social policy choices.

The debate focuses on social tensions and economic prospects (Obiols), the commitment of the Military to democracy (Vajgl) and free access to media for all parties (Brepools).

6. Any other business

7. Date and place of the next meeting
