

MEPs debate air safety on Monday following Germanwings air crash in March

Transport Committee MEPs will discuss aviation safety with the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) Executive Director Patrick Ky and the European Commission on Monday afternoon, after the Germanwings air crash in the French Alps in March.

EASA set up a task force to assess the preliminary investigation report by the French Civil Aviation Safety Investigation Authority (BEA) and the Commission will have to decide whether to update EU aviation safety rules.

The debate starts at about 16:30, in the József Antall (JAN) building, room 6Q2.
