Amendment 1
Proposal for a directive
Recital 1

Text proposed by the Commission

(1) Under Article 153 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), the European Parliament and the Council may, in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure, adopt, by means of directives, minimum requirements for gradual implementation aiming at improving working conditions, the protection of workers where their employment contract is terminated, information and consultation of workers and the working environment to protect workers’ health and safety. Such directives must avoid imposing administrative, financial and legal constraints in a way that would hold back the creation and development of small and medium-sized undertakings.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Commission proposal seeks to improve working conditions for seafarers working on vessels flying the flag of one of the 28 EU Member States while taking proper account of the specific features of the maritime sector. This involves amending the five existing directives from whose scope seafarers are or may be excluded. The Commission draws attention to the fact that the exclusions applying to seafarers in the five directives was not provided for in the Commission’s initial proposals but were the outcome of negotiations with the other partners.

A draft report on this proposal was rejected by the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs at the end of the last parliamentary term. This was largely due to the fact that the draft report was drawn up in a great hurry because of a lack of time. The situation has changed since then, however, as a vital agreement on the Commission proposal was reached by the main EU-level social partners a few weeks ago. The rapporteur warmly welcomes the progress brought by that agreement, which puts an end to a situation in which seafarers were discriminated against and to unfair competition between those Member States which wished to improve working conditions and therefore did not apply the exclusions, or applied very few, and those which applied them all. She also welcomes the balance that the social partners have struck between better worker protection and maintaining the competitiveness of the maritime sector, which is of key importance to the EU’s future.

The rapporteur would like to thank the social partners for their joint efforts, which will make the maritime sector, which has lost some of its pulling power in recent years, more attractive. Better working conditions for seafarers will give the sector a boost and will help to achieve the goal set in the Commission's Blue Paper of 10 October 2007 of increasing the number of workers in the maritime and fisheries sector and improving their working conditions (the former cannot be achieved without the latter).

The rapporteur would also draw attention to the work carried out with the shadow rapporteurs of all the political groups in the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs. She would like to thank them for putting forward their positions and thus enabling her to take the greatest possible account of the different views held within the committee in her draft report.

On the above basis, the rapporteur would ask you to endorse this report.
