Proposal for a directive
Recital 1

Text proposed by the Commission

(1) Sexual abuse and sexual exploitation of children, including child pornography constitute serious violations of fundamental rights, in particular the rights of the child to protection and care as is necessary for his or her well-being as stipulated by the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

Amendment

(1) Sexual abuse and sexual exploitation of children, including child pornography constitute serious violations of the law and of fundamental rights, in particular the rights of the child to protection and care as is necessary for his or her well-being as stipulated by the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

Amendment 45
Sophia in 't Veld, Cecilia Wikström

Proposal for a directive
Recital 2 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(2a) Sexual abuse of children takes place most frequently in the direct environment of children, during a longer period, by figures of authority, such as parents, relatives, teachers, child minders, or religious leaders. The relationship of dependence between the victim and the perpetrator, strict social or moral conventions with the community, feelings of guilt and fear of retribution or exclusion by the community, make it extremely difficult for young victims to speak out, and sometimes they remain silent far into adulthood. This is an important obstacle to effective prosecution of child abuse. Child abuse therefore often goes unreported or unpunished.

Or. en

Justification

A recent study (to be published in February 2011) shows that in about 30% of all cases parents were the abuser, 10% aunts and uncles, 10% grandparents and in about 8% of the cases their own brothers and sisters. Additionally 19% of the boys and about 10% of the girls have been abused by their own friends. In 10 to 20% of the cases children are being abused in institutions like school, sports clubs and the church.

Recital 2 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(2a) In view of the increase in internet use, it is very important to draw attention to technical opportunities for prevention. There is a need to disseminate information material among parents and those working in education concerning the use of suitable supervisory tools for the filtering of web content. Support should also be given to programmes and products which are suitable for filtering web content available via mobile phones and games consoles. Furthermore, there is a need for concrete measures to inform children and draw their attention to the dangers of the unauthorised accessing of information and pictures on public websites and the associated risk of abuse.

Amendment

(4a) Calls upon those signatories to the Convention on the Rights of the Child (Convention) that have not met the reporting obligations of Article 44 of the Convention, most notably Belgium, Cyprus, Greece, the Holy Seat, and Portugal, to submit to the Committee on the Rights of the Child, reports on the measures they have adopted to give effect to the rights recognized in the Convention and on the progress made on the enjoyment of those rights.

Amendment 49
Anna Hedh

Proposal for a directive
Recital 5 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(5a) Member States are encouraged to create mechanisms for data collection or focal points, at the national or local levels and in collaboration with civil society, for the purpose of observing and evaluating the phenomenon of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse of children, with due respect for the requirements of personal data protection in line with the Council of Europe Convention CETS No. 201 on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse. In order to be able to properly evaluate the results of actions to combat sexual abuse, sexual exploitation and child pornography, the Union should continue to develop its work on methodologies and data collection methods to produce comparable statistics.

Or. en

Justification

There is a lack of reliable data on and knowledge of the magnitude of the crime and the effectiveness of policy measures to fight child sexual abuse and exploitation.

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(5b) The authorities have a duty to acquire a good understanding of children and how they behave when faced with traumatic experiences, so as to ensure a high quality of evidence-taking and to reduce the stress placed on children when carrying out the necessary measures. This requires increased international cooperation and needs the authorities to ensure that sufficient resources are made available for investigations involving children.

Proposal for a directive
Recital 6 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(6a) Member States should ensure that children are protected against any form of sexual abuse and sexual exploitation. For that purpose, school should be the preferred institution for preventing this type of crime, through the introduction of information and awareness-raising programmes. This means that school staff should be suitably trained to inform children about their rights, teach them to recognise and avoid high-risk situations and encourage them to speak out if they have been victims of such crimes.

Effective investigation tools and full cross-border cooperation to ensure rapid and efficient access to criminal records and international child abuse databases should be made available to those responsible for the investigation and prosecution of such offences, since children are entitled, as confirmed by the European Court of Human Rights, to State protection, in the form of effective deterrence, from such grave types of interference with essential aspects of their private lives. Such tools may include rapid detection of data traceable to internet users, in particular in the online spaces where grooming is most likely to take place and which guarantee users public anonymity, interception of communications, covert surveillance including electronic surveillance, monitoring of bank accounts or transfers or other financial investigations, taking into account the principle of proportionality and subject to judicial review.

(10a) Given the serious nature of the psychological damage that sexual abuse can cause and the fact that child victims find it difficult - and are sometimes afraid - to talk, Member States should ensure that limitation periods take account of the exceptional nature of the offences. Justification

Better knowledge about the efficiency of prevention efforts is needed, since it is necessary to know that actions taken to prevent abuse are really working. Justification

Stringent procedures should be set up through international agreements to ensure that immediate action is taken to remove illegal content at source while making sure that evidence is preserved for police investigation. It shall be up to the Member States to implement additional measures, such as blocking, to restrict access to an Internet page containing child abuse material.

Justification

Child pornography and/or performances always involve sexual abuse of a child, and, therefore constitute evidence of a crime committed against a child. Recital 3 of the proposal recognises the link between the definition of “child pornography” and child sexual abuse. The use of the term “child pornography” in the proposal fails to acknowledge this link and weakens the proposals as it associates child abuse with conduct which, while pornographic, may be legal in an adult environment. Additionally, the word ‘pornography’ implies an element of consent on the part of the child and allows offenders and potential offenders to minimise the seriousness of what they are doing when they look at images.

Amendment

(ea) 'child sexual exploitation in travel and tourism' shall mean the sexual exploitation of children by a person or persons who travel from their usual environment to a destination where they have sexual contact with children.

Or. en

Justification

Serious forms of child sexual abuse and exploitation currently not covered by EU legislation that would be criminalized by the proposed Directive encompass child sexual exploitation in travel and tourism. Whilst this is clearly recognized in the explanatory memorandum, the proposal fails to provide a definition of child sexual exploitation in travel and tourism. To address this problem, it is important that Member States agree on a common definition and harmonise their legislation accordingly. We therefore propose that child sexual exploitation in travel and tourism is explicitly defined as “the sexual exploitation of children by a person or persons who travel from their usual environment to a destination where they have sexual contact with children”. This would allow Member States to punish child sexual exploitation by any individual who does not normally live in the location where the abuse takes place, including domestic and international travellers.

Amendment

2a. As soon as the competent authorities have an indication that the child might be subjected to an offence referred to in Articles 3 to 7 of this Directive, an individual assessment of the special circumstances of the child victim, taking due account of the child's views, needs and concerns, shall be carried out. Social welfare authorities shall be present during this assessment, which will aim to:

- a) determine the level of maturity of the victim;*
- b) establish the parameters of the consent of the victim;*
- c) verify the age of the victim;*
- d) determine possible psychological or physical damage, and whether coercion was involved;*
- e) verify whether there was a conflict of interest from a family member or someone in close contact with the victim.*

On the basis of this assessment, Member States shall take the necessary measures to ensure that specific actions are taken to assist and support victims in the short and long-term, in their physical, psychological and social recovery, including appropriate and safe accommodation, material assistance, medical treatment, including psychological assistance and counselling as well as access to education. Victims

2. Member States shall ensure that child victims have immediate access to free legal counselling and to free legal representation, including for the purpose of claiming compensation

2. Member States shall ensure that child victims have immediate access to legal counselling and, in accordance with the role of victims in the relevant justice system, to legal representation, including for the purpose of claiming compensation.

Legal counselling and legal representation shall be free of charge when the victim does not have sufficient financial resources.

Or. de

Justification

The role of victims in criminal proceedings differs substantially in the various Member States. It may first be necessary to establish beyond doubt that the person concerned is indeed a victim. A reference to the national justice system is therefore needed.

Or. de Justification

The directive should not prescribe videotaping of all interviews as a general rule, including therefore interviews by the police or public prosecutor. Moreover, it is not automatically in the child's interests that an interview should be videotaped.

Prevention Measures

1. Member States shall take appropriate actions such as information and awareness raising campaigns, research and education programmes, where appropriate in cooperation with civil society organisations and local support networks, aimed at raising awareness and reducing the risk of children becoming victims of sexual abuse, sexual exploitation or sexual abuse images. These measures must be addressed to all parties concerned, including children, parents and education practitioners, in order for them to learn how to recognise the signs of sexual abuse, both online and offline.

2. Help-lines shall be set up create a safe and anonymous communication channel between children that are or may be victims and members of relevant civil society organisations or local support networks.

Amendment 309
Manfred Weber

Proposal for a directive
Article 20 – paragraph 2 – subparagraph 1

Text proposed by the Commission

Member States shall take the necessary measures to ensure that effective intervention programmes or measures are made available with a view to preventing and minimising the risks of repeated offences of a sexual nature against children. These programmes or measures shall be accessible at any time during the criminal proceedings, inside and outside prison, according to the conditions laid down in national law.

Amendment

Member States shall take the necessary measures to ensure that effective intervention programmes or measures are made available with a view to preventing and minimising the risks of repeated offences of a sexual nature against children.

Or. de

Justification

Therapeutic measures during pre-trial detention are problematic. They need to continue for a certain length of time, and there is little likelihood that they can be organised meaningfully in view of the uncertain duration of pre-trial detention. Moreover, when the judgment becomes irrevocable, this will as a rule result in a move, so that there would be no guarantee of continuity of therapy. In addition, this might conflict with the presumption of innocence and the rights of offenders in criminal proceedings (e.g. the right to remain silent).
