Amendment

-Ab. whereas there is abroad consensus that a fair, open and rules-based international trade plays a vital role in shaping economic and social performance and prospects of countries around the world, especially those of developing countries; whereas trade is instrumental in empowering women and supporting communities and women's fully-fledged participation in the economy is essential for growth; whereas studies show that empowering women could add a quarter to world's GDP, that helping women is essential as much from economic as social and poverty eradication perspectives, due to their role in families and communities; whereas, however, trade policies lacking an appropriate gender focus, may further entrench or exacerbate existing gender biases and discrimination;

Ic. Calls on the European Commission and the Council to ensure that EU trade and investment agreements include a specific Chapter on Trade and Gender Equality and Women Empowerment, building on existing examples such as the Chile Uruguay and Chile-Canada FTAs, and that it specifically foresees the commitment by the parties to promote gender equality and women empowerment, beyond the condition to adhere and the obligation to implement international human rights, labour and environmental instruments and standards on women's rights and gender equality, which shall be addressed in TSDC; to ensure that it includes, among others, the commitment of the parties:

- to adopt, maintain and implement effectively gender equality laws, regulations and policies, including the necessary active measures to promote gender equality and women empowerment;

- to promote public knowledge of the international human rights law, as well as national laws, regulations and best practices on women's rights and gender equality;

- to mainstream gender equality and women's rights in all their policies, including trade-related policies;

-to defend and promote a gender-sensitive trade policy in all trade negotiations and relevant international platforms and fora, including at the multilateral, regional and national level;

- to evaluate systematically the impact of the parties' trade policies and agreements on gender equality, on the basis of disaggregated data and an adequate methodology, with clear and measurable indicators;

- to ensure an improved participation of women in decision-making bodies, both in the public and private sectors;

- to facilitate women's economic participation, by removing barriers, from regulatory, to procedural and cultural (including laws on access to land or inheritance) and to take the necessary active measures to improve their access to credit, land, information, networks, as well as technical assistance, particularly to small farmers and women-MSMEs, among other purposes, to help them comply with rules and standards and expand their businesses;

- to promote the establishment of specific help-desks to support women-led enterprises wishing to participate in international trade, with a view to facilitating information and counsel and, particularly, for micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs);

- to promote enhanced participation of women enterprises in public procurement, building on the experience of 'Chile Compras';

- to seek to strengthen government support to services, technologies, infrastructures, such as Internet, and custom services of particular importance for women empowerment, with particular attention to the needs of rural women, small farmers and MSMEs;

- to support the participation and to guarantee the labour rights of women in WTO Mode 4 opportunities;

- to ensure the involvement of women organisations and gender equality experts in all phases of trade negotiations, from trade negotiating teams, to expert advisory group and joint consultative committees in charge of monitoring the application of trade agreements, which should include periodical substantial discussions on gender and trade in its agenda, in a specific consultative committee;

- to carry out bilateral cooperation activities to improve the capacity and conditions for women to fully benefit from the opportunities of the trade agreement and, to this aim, to establish a trade and gender joint committee, to determine and facilitate cooperation and supervise its application, guaranteeing appropriate participation of private stakeholders, including experts and civil society organizations active in the field of gender equality and women empowerment, guaranteeing a wide representation, by

labour rights and gender wage gaps;
Believes that these frameworks should enable a harmonic cooperation with international organisation as the UN, the WTO, the ILO and the OECD, establishing common definitions, to allow for more clear and coordinated actions and evaluations; in this regard, values the 'Compact for Continuous Improvements in Labour Rights and Factory Safety in the Ready-Made Garment and Knitwear Industry in Bangladesh' (the Sustainability Compact) as a step forward in regards to the monitoring activity, which should be subject of full compliance;
