(3) In its Communication “A European Solidarity Corps” of 7 December 2016¹⁸, the Commission emphasised the need to strengthen the foundations for solidarity work across Europe, to provide young people with more and better opportunities for solidarity activities covering a broad range of areas, and to support national and local actors, in their efforts to cope with different challenges and crises. The Communication launched a first phase of the European Solidarity Corps whereby different Union programmes have been mobilised to offer volunteering, traineeship or job opportunities to young people across the EU. These activities, whether implemented before or after the entry into force of this Regulation, should continue to apply the rules and conditions set by the respective Union programmes that have financed them under the first phase of the European Solidarity Corps.

Amendment

(4) Young people should be provided with easily accessible opportunities to engage in solidarity activities, which would bring positive effects to society while also to the benefit of communities while acquiring useful experience, skills and competences for their personal, educational, social, civic and professional development, thereby improving their employability. Those activities would also support the mobility of young volunteers, trainees and workers.

enabling them in the first place to express their commitment to the benefit of communities and in parallel to acquire useful experience, skills and competences for their personal, educational, social, civic and professional development, thereby improving their skills and enhancing occupational strength which they can go on to apply in an employment setting. Those activities would also support the mobility of young volunteers, trainees and workers.

(11) Young people's spirit of initiative is an important asset for society and for the labour market. The European Solidarity Corps should contribute to fostering this aspect by offering young people the opportunity to devise and implement their own projects aimed at addressing specific challenges to the benefit of their local communities. Those projects should be an opportunity to try out ideas and support young people to be themselves drivers of solidarity actions. (15) A quality label should be put in place to ensure compliance of the participating organisations with the principles and requirements of the European Solidarity Corps Charter, as regards their rights and responsibilities during all stages of the solidarity experience. Obtaining a quality label should be a precondition for participation but should not automatically lead to funding under the European Solidarity Corps.

Amendment

(15) A quality label and monitoring framework respectively for the volunteering and for traineeships and jobs should be put in place, in partnership with relevant stakeholders, to ensure compliance of the participating organisations with the principles and requirements of the European Solidarity Corps Charter, as regards their rights and responsibilities during all stages of the solidarity experience. Obtaining a quality label should be a precondition for participation but should not automatically lead to funding under the European Solidarity Corps. The quality labels should ensure that European Solidarity Corps activities do not substitute for actual jobs or traineeships. The process that leads to attribution of a quality label should not create additional bureaucracy that would dissuade organisations, in particular private businesses in the occupational component, from contributing to the European Solidarity Corps. A quality label should also ensure that the participating organisations comply with the ex-ante conditionality on social inclusion and particularly with its investment priority on the transition from institutional to community-based health and social services set out in the Common Provisions Regulation on the European Structural and Investment Funds, to prevent that EU funding can be used to support (even in an indirect way) segregating health and social infrastructures.

Or. en

Justification

Since 2013, the European Union has steadily moved towards the deinstitutionalisation of health services, meaning the process replacing long-stay psychiatric hospitals with less isolated community mental health services, with the inclusion of an ex-ante conditionality in the European Structural and Investment Fund, according to which these funds cannot be dedicated to institutional health services. The European Solidarity Corps should include provisions in this sense.
