Proposal for a regulation
Recital 1

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1) The internal market is a cornerstone of the Union. Since its inception, it has proved a major contributor to growth, competitiveness and employment. It has generated new opportunities and economies of scale for European businesses, notably micro, small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs), and strengthened their industrial competitiveness. The internal market contributed to the creation of jobs and offered greater choice at lower prices for consumers. It continues to be an engine for building a stronger, more balanced and fairer economy. It is one of the Union's major achievements and its best asset in an increasingly global world.

(1) The internal market is a cornerstone of the Union. Since its inception, it has proved a major contributor to growth, competitiveness and employment. It has generated new opportunities and economies of scale for European businesses, notably micro, small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs), clusters, enterprise networks and consortium of companies, and strengthened their industrial competitiveness, and has also aimed to create and to reinforce the value chain where businesses are involved in all aspects of the process. The internal market contributed to the creation of jobs and offered greater choice at lower prices for consumers. It continues to be an engine for ensuring economic growth and for building a stronger, more balanced and fairer economy. It is one of the Union's major achievements and its best asset in an increasingly global world.

Or. en

Justification

It is important to reinforce the value chain when enterprises are involved in the entire supply chain.

Amendment

(3a) Subsequent to the Paris Agreement, EU climate-related spending under the MFF should be significantly increased in comparison with the current MFF and reach at least 30 %. Measures covered by this Regulation should contribute to achieving a net-zero GHG-emission economy and society by 2050 at the latest. It is important to ensure that climate change mitigation and adaptation as well as risk prevention is integrated ex-ante in the preparation, design and implementation of the Single Market Programme rather than simply reported ex-post.

(5) Several programmes for Union action exist currently in the fields of competitiveness of enterprises including SMEs, consumer protection, customers and end-users in financial services, policy making in financial services and food chain. Some additional activities are financed directly under the internal market budget lines. It is necessary to streamline and exploit synergies between various actions and provide for a more flexible and agile framework to finance activities aiming to achieve a well-functioning internal market in the most cost-efficient manner. It is therefore necessary to establish a new programme bringing together activities financed previously under those other programmes and other relevant budget lines. The programme should also include new initiatives which aim to improve the functioning of the internal market.

(5a) It is also important to bring in an element of self-criticism, highlighting the fact that the single market has not always worked in the way it was expected to, and that, in its implementation, the social consequences have not always been borne in mind. The new global situation that is emerging means it is absolutely essential that a new approach be taken to the development of the internal market. That approach should be based on integration capacity, and on the involvement of society, workers and consumers in the processes of change that are under way.

(8) The Programme should support the design, implementation and enforcement of Union legislation underpinning the proper functioning of the internal market. The Programme should support the creation of the right conditions to empower all actors of the internal market: businesses, citizens including consumers, civil society and public authorities. To that end, the Programme should aim to ensure the competitiveness of businesses, notably SMEs, but also supporting the enforcement of consumer protection and safety rules and by raising the awareness of businesses and individuals by providing them with the right tools, knowledge and competence to make informed decisions and strengthen their participation in Union's policy-making. Furthermore, the Programme should aim to enhance regulatory and administrative cooperation, notably through exchange of best practices, building of knowledge and competence bases, including the use of strategic public procurement. The Programme should also aim to support the development of high-quality international standards that underpin the implementation of Union legislation. This also includes standard setting in the field of financial reporting and audit, thereby contributing to the transparency and well-functioning of the Union's capital markets and to enhancing investor protection. The Programme should support rulemaking and standard setting also by ensuring the broadest possible stakeholder involvement. The objective of the Programme should also be to support the implementation and enforcement of Union legislation providing for a high level of health for humans, animals and plants along the food chain and the improvement of the welfare of animals.

(10) Regulatory obstacles in the internal market have been removed for many industrial products through prevention mechanisms, the adoption of common rules and, where no such Union rules exist, through the principle of mutual recognition. In areas where no Union legislation exists, the principle of mutual recognition means that goods that are lawfully marketed in one Member State enjoy the right to free movement and can be sold in another Member State. However, inadequate application of mutual recognition makes it harder for companies to access markets in other Member States. Despite the high degree of market integration in the area of goods, this leads to lost opportunities for the economy at large. The Programme should therefore aim to improve the application of mutual recognition in the area of goods and to reduce the number of illegal and non-compliant goods entering the market.

waste and pollution. Improved productivity, in particular through increased resource efficiency, energy savings and the implementation of the 'energy efficiency first' principle are the primary source of sustainable income and competitiveness. SMEs are the engine of the European economy making up 99% of all businesses in Europe, providing two thirds of jobs, and contributing substantially to the creation of new jobs with a regional and local dimension, and hence social cohesion. SMEs are key drivers in the context of the energy transition, the fight against climate change, the EU's competitiveness on green tech and a major source of innovation in the EU. Bearing this in mind, specific actions under this Programme should include promoting the development of sustainable products, services, technologies, non-technical solutions and processes, as well as enhanced resource- and energy-efficiency and corporate social responsibility.

Joint Cluster Initiatives should achieve critical mass to accelerate the growth of SMEs. By connecting specialised eco-systems, clusters create new business opportunities for SMEs and integrate them better in European and global strategic value chains. Support should be provided for the development of transnational partnership strategies and the implementation of joint activities, supported by the European Cluster Collaboration Platform. Sustainable partnering should be encouraged with continuation funding if performance and participation milestones are reached. Direct support to SMEs should be channelled through cluster organisations for the following: uptake of advanced technologies, new business models, low-carbon and resource-efficient solutions, creativity and design, skills upgrading, talent attraction, entrepreneurship acceleration, and internationalisation. Other specialised SME support actors should be associated to facilitate industrial transformation and implementations of smart specialisation strategies. The Programme should thus contribute to growth and build linkages with the Union's (digital) innovation hubs and investments made under Cohesion Policy and Horizon Europe. Synergies with the Erasmus programme can also be explored.

Justification

Certain economic sectors are often excluded in translations from English to Italian, because while in English the term 'industrial' is all-encompassing, in Italian the term 'industriale' is more restrictive.

the conditions laid down in a specific agreement covering the participation of the third country to any Union programme, provided that the agreement:

(i) ensures a fair balance as regards the contributions and benefits of the third country participating in the Union programmes;

(ii) lays down the conditions of participation in the programmes, including the calculation of financial contributions to individual programmes and their administrative costs;

(iii) does not confer to the third country a decisional power on the programme;

(iv) guarantees the rights of the Union to ensure sound financial management and to protect its financial interests.

The contributions referred to in point (ii) shall constitute assigned revenues in accordance with Article [21(5)] of the Financial Regulation.

Or. es

Justification

It is unclear what added value third countries can bring to this programme, especially given its limited financial options.

Article 16 – paragraph 2 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

2a. Work programmes implementing the specific objective referred to in Article 3 – paragraph 2 – point b – point iii (new) “SME Scale-up instrument” shall be implemented following the working methods and experiences of the SME Instrument. It shall be further refined in its methodology to specifically assess excellence in commercialisation in an SME business development environment. The SME Scale-up Instrument will have to support all kinds of scale-up in the specific context of SME & Entrepreneurship development and will be complementary to the new EIC with its specific focus on break-through innovation. Specific measures should be taken so that the SME Scale-up Instrument will better help to close gap in SME Entrepreneurship between EU-14 and EU-13 country groups. 25% of the budget is to be allocated to business projects supporting low carbon and carbon free products and services. A certain share of the SME Financial Instruments is to be set aside to provide appropriate financial support to the further development of successful SME Scale-up companies.
