

EPRS | European Parliamentary Research Service

Astrid Lulling lounge

Brussels

Reserved for Members

The European Parliamentary Research Service (EPRS) manages the Parliament's Library facilities in Brussels, Luxembourg and Strasbourg. The Astrid Lulling lounge, located on the ground floor of the Altiero Spinelli building, offers a comfortable and relaxing environment for the exclusive use of Members of the European Parliament.

In this space, the Members may access to physical publications:

- Newspapers in print: The Guardian, Frankfurter Allgemeine, Süddeutsche Zeitung, Le Figaro, Le Monde, Corriere della Sera, El País, Gazeta Wyborcza, NRC Handelsblad
- Current affairs magazines in print: The Economist, Politico, Le Point, L'Express, Der Spiegel, L'Espresso, Internazionale
- A selection of recent EP publications in several languages. These include Briefings, In-depth Analyses and Studies on a variety of European Union policies, issues and legislation

They may also enjoy

- A permanent exhibition on Astrid Lulling
- A 6-month exhibition about the EU accession's history of the country currently holding the Presidency of the Council
- Time-limited books exhibitions on various topics, e.g. "100 books on Europe to remember", current Members publications, female authors publications, etc.

EPRS Members' Hotline

Tel: 88100 | e-mail: epres@ep.europa.eu

---

Astrid LULLING was the youngest Member of the European Parliament when she joined in 1965, and the first Luxembourgish woman in the then Assembly. She was successively elected five times, from 1989 to 2014, serving the Parliament and the European project in a variety of key roles, most recently as Quaestor.

