PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT RESULTING FROM INTERINSTITUTIONAL NEGOTIATIONS

Subject: Proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on market surveillance and compliance of products and amending Council Directive 2004/42/EC, Regulations (EC) No 765/2008 and (EU) No 305/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council (COM(2017)0795 – C8-0004/2018 – 2017/0353(COD))

The interinstitutional negotiations on the aforementioned proposal for a regulation have led to a compromise. In accordance with Rule 74(4) of the Rules of Procedure, the provisional agreement, reproduced below, is submitted as a whole to the Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection for decision by way of a single vote.

² Position of the European Parliament of ... (not yet published in the Official Journal) and decision of the Council of

Whereas:

- (1) In order to guarantee the free movement of products within the Union, it is necessary to ensure that products are compliant with Union harmonisation legislation and therefore fulfil requirements providing a high level of protection of public interests such as health and safety in general, health and safety in the workplace, protection of consumers, protection of the environment, public security and protection of any other public interests protected by that legislation. Robust enforcement of these requirements is essential to the proper protection of these interests and to create the conditions in which fair competition in the Union market for goods can thrive. Rules are therefore necessary to ensure this enforcement, regardless of whether products are placed on the market via offline or online means and regardless of whether they are produced in the Union or not.

- (2) Union harmonisation legislation covers a large share of manufactured products. Non-compliant and unsafe products put at risks citizens, and might distort competition with economic operators selling compliant products within the Union.
- (3) Strengthening the Single Market for goods through further enhancing efforts to keep non-compliant products from being placed on the Union market was identified as a priority in the Communication from the Commission entitled 'Upgrading the Single Market: more opportunities for people and businesses'. This should be achieved by strengthening market surveillance, providing clear, transparent and comprehensive rules to economic operators, intensifying compliance controls and promoting closer cross-border cooperation among enforcement authorities, including through cooperation with customs authorities.

- (4) The framework for market surveillance established by this Regulation should complement and strengthen existing provisions in Union harmonisation legislation relating to the ensuring of compliance of products and the framework for cooperation with organisations representing economic operators or end-users, the market surveillance of products and controls on those products entering the Union. However, in accordance with the principle of lex specialis, this Regulation should apply only in so far as there are no specific provisions with the same objective, nature or effect in other existing or future rules of Union harmonisation legislation. The corresponding provisions of this Regulation should not therefore apply in the areas covered by such specific provisions, for instance those set out in Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on cosmetic products³, Regulation (EU) 2017/745 of the European Parliament and of the Council on medical devices⁴ and Regulation (EU) 2017/746 of the European Parliament and of the Council on in vitro diagnostic medical devices⁵, including the use of EUDAMED, and Regulation (EU) 2018/858 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁶.

⁴ Regulation (EU) 2017/745 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 April 2017 on medical devices, amending Directive 2001/83/EC, Regulation (EC) No 178/2002 and Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009 and repealing Council Directives 90/385/EEC and 93/42/EEC (OJ L 117, 5.5.2017, p. 1).

⁶ Regulation (EU) 2018/858 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2018 on the approval and market surveillance of motor vehicles and their trailers, and of systems, components and separate technical units intended for such vehicles, amending Regulations (EC) No 715/2007 and (EC) No 595/2009 and repealing Directive 2007/46/EC (OJ L 151, 14.6.2018, p. 1).

- (5) Directive 2001/95/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council⁷ lays down the general safety requirements for all consumer products and provides for specific obligations and powers of the Member States in relation to dangerous products as well as for the exchange of information to that effect through the Union Rapid Alert System for dangerous non-food products (RAPEX). Market surveillance authorities should have the possibility of taking the more specific measures available to them under that Directive. In order to achieve a higher level of safety for consumer products, the mechanisms for exchanges of information and rapid intervention situations provided for in Directive 2001/95/EC should be made more effective.
- (6) The provisions on market surveillance of this Regulation should cover products that are subject to the Union harmonisation legislation listed in Annex I concerning manufactured products other than food, feed, medicinal products for human and veterinary use, living plants and animals, products of human origin and products of plants and animals relating directly to their future reproduction. This will ensure a uniform framework for market surveillance of those products at Union level and will help to increase consumer and other end-users confidence in products placed on the Union market. If new Union harmonisation legislation is adopted in the future, it will be for that legislation to provide whether this Regulation is also to apply to that legislation.

⁷ Directive 2001/95/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 3 December 2001 on general product safety (OJ L 11, 15.1.2002, p. 4).

- (7) Articles 15 to 29 of Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁸ laying down the Community market surveillance framework and controls of products entering the Community market will be replaced by this Regulation. That framework includes also the provisions on controls of products entering the Union market in Articles 27, 28 and 29, which apply not only to products covered by the market surveillance framework as outlined above, but to all Union legislation in so far as other Union legislation does not contain specific provisions relating to the organisation of controls on products entering the Union market. It is therefore necessary to extend the scope of the provisions of this Regulation on products entering the Union market to all Union legislation as well.
- (8) In order to rationalise and simplify the overall legislative framework, whilst simultaneously pursuing the objective of Better Regulation, the rules applicable to controls on products entering the Union market should be revisited and integrated into a single legislative framework for controls on products at the external borders.

⁸ Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council setting out the requirements for accreditation and market surveillance relating to the marketing of products and repealing Regulation (EEC) No 339/93 (OJ L 218, 13.8.2008, p. 30).

- (9) Responsibility for enforcing Union harmonisation legislation should lie with the Member States, whose market surveillance authorities should be required to ensure that the legislation is fully complied with. The Member States should, therefore, establish systematic approaches to ensure effectiveness of market surveillance and other enforcement activities. With this regard, the methodology and criteria for assessing risks should be further harmonised in all Member States in order to ensure a level playing field for all economic operators.
- (10) In order to assist market surveillance authorities to strengthen consistency in their activities in relation to the application of this Regulation, an effective peer review system should be established for those market surveillance authorities wishing to participate.
- (11) Certain definitions currently set out in Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 should be aligned with definitions set out in other Union acts and, where appropriate, reflect the architecture of modern supply chains. The definition of ‘manufacturer’ in this Regulation should not relieve manufacturers of any obligations they may have in Union harmonisation legislation where specific definitions of manufacturer are applied, which may include any natural or legal person who modifies a product already placed on the market in such a way that compliance with the applicable Union harmonisation legislation may be affected and places it on the market, or any other natural or legal person who places a product on the market under his name or trade mark.

- (12) Economic operators throughout the entire supply chain should be expected to act responsibly and in full accordance with the legal requirements applicable when placing or making products available on the market, so as to ensure compliance with the Union harmonisation legislation on products. This Regulation should be without prejudice to the obligations which correspond to the role of each economic operator in the supply and distribution process pursuant to specific provisions in Union harmonisation legislation, with the manufacturer retaining ultimate responsibility for compliance of the product with requirements in the Union harmonisation legislation.

- (13) The challenges of the global market and an increasingly complex supply chain, as well as the increase of products that are offered for sale online to end-users within the Union, call for the strengthening and enforcement measures, to ensure the safety of consumers. Furthermore, practical experience of market surveillance has shown that this supply chain sometimes involves economic operators whose novel form means that they do not fit easily into the traditional supply chains according to the existing legal framework. Such is the case, in particular, with fulfilment service providers, which perform many of the same functions as importers but which might not always correspond to the traditional definition of importer in Union law. In order to ensure that market surveillance authorities can carry out their responsibilities effectively and to avoid a gap in the enforcement system, it is appropriate to include fulfilment service providers within the list of economic operators against whom enforcement measures may be taken by market surveillance authorities. By including fulfilment centres within the scope of the this Regulation, market surveillance authorities will be better able to deal with new forms of economic activity in order to ensure the safety of consumers and the smooth functioning of the internal market, including where the economic operator acts both as an importer as regards certain products but as a fulfilment service provider as regards other products.

- (14) Modern supply chains encompass a wide variety of economic operators who should all be subject to enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation, while taking due consideration of their respective role in the supply chain, and the extent to which they contribute to the making available of products on the Union market. Therefore, it is necessary to apply this Regulation to economic operators that are directly concerned by Union harmonisation legislation as listed in Annex I, such as the producer of an article and the downstream user as defined in each case in Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁹ and Regulation (EC) No 1272/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁰, the installer as defined in Directive 2014/33/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council¹¹, the supplier as defined in Regulation (EC) No 1222/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹² or the dealer as defined in Regulation (EU) 2017/1369 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹³.

⁹ Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH), establishing a European Chemicals Agency, amending Directive 1999/45/EC and repealing Council Regulation (EEC) No 793/93 and Commission Regulation (EC) No 1488/94 as well as Council Directive 76/769/EEC and Commission Directives 91/155/EEC, 93/67/EEC, 93/105/EC and 2000/21/EC (OJ L 396 30.12.2006, p. 1).

¹² Regulation (EC) No 1222/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 November 2009 on the labelling of tyres with respect to fuel efficiency and other essential parameters (OJ L 342, 22.12.2009, p.46).

¹³ Regulation (EU) 2017/1369 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 July 2017 setting a framework for energy labelling and repealing Directive 2010/30/EU (OJ L 198, 28.7.2017, p. 1).

- (15) In the case of a product being sold online or through other means of distance sales, the product should be considered made available on the market if the offer is targeted at end-users in the Union. In line with the applicable Union legislation on international private law a case-by-case analysis, taking into account the relevant circumstances, should be applied to establish whether an offer is targeted at end-users in the Union. An offer should be considered targeted if the relevant economic operator directs, by any means, his or her activities to a Member State of the European Union. For the case-by-case analyses, relevant factors, such as the geographical areas to which dispatch is possible, the languages available used for the offer or for ordering or payment possibilities, need to be taken into consideration. In case of online sales the mere accessibility of the economic operators' or the intermediaries' website in the Member State in which the end-user is established or domiciled is insufficient.

- (16) The development of e-commerce is also due to a great extent to the proliferation of information society service providers, normally through platforms and for remuneration, which offer intermediary services by storing third party content, but without exercising any control over such content, thus not acting on behalf of an economic operator. Removal of content regarding non-compliant products or where it is not feasible restricting access to non-compliant products offered through their services should be without prejudice to the rules laid down in Directive 2000/31/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁴. In particular, no general obligation should be imposed on service providers to monitor the information which they transmit or store, nor should a general obligation be imposed upon them to actively seek facts or circumstances indicating illegal activity. Furthermore, hosting service providers should not be held liable as long as they do not have actual knowledge of illegal activity or information and are not aware of the facts or circumstances from which the illegal activity or information is apparent.

- (17) While this Regulation does not deal with the protection of intellectual property rights, it should nevertheless be borne in mind that often counterfeit products do not comply with the requirements set out in the Union harmonisation legislation, pose risks to health and safety of end-users, distort competition, endanger public interests and support other illegal activities. Therefore Member States should continue taking effective measures in preventing the entry of counterfeit products to the Union's market pursuant to Regulation (EU) No 608/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁵.
- (18) A fairer single market should ensure equal conditions for competition to all economic operators and protection against unfair competition. To this purpose, strengthened enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products is necessary. Good cooperation between manufacturers and the market surveillance authorities is a key element allowing immediate intervention and corrective action in relation to the product. It is important that for certain products there should be an economic operator established in the Union so that market surveillance authorities have someone to whom requests can be addressed, including for providing information regarding a product's compliance with Union harmonisation legislation and who can cooperate with market surveillance authorities making sure that immediate corrective action is taken to remedy instances of non-compliance. Economic operators who should perform these tasks should be the manufacturer, or the importer when the manufacturer is not established in the Union, or an authorised representative designated by the manufacturer for this purpose, or a fulfilment service provider established in the Union for consignments handled by it when no other economic operator is established in the Union.

¹⁵ Regulation (EU) No 608/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 June 2013 concerning customs enforcement of intellectual property rights and repealing Council Regulation (EC) No 1383/2003 (OJ L 181, 29.6.2013, p. 15).

- (19) The development of e-commerce poses certain challenges for market surveillance authorities with regard to ensuring the compliance of products sold online and effectively enforcing the Union harmonisation legislation. The number of economic operators offering products directly to consumers by electronic means is increasing. Therefore, the role of economic operator with tasks regarding certain products is essential for providing market surveillance authorities with an interlocutor established in the Union, and for performing specific tasks in a timely manner to make sure that the products comply with the requirements of Union harmonisation legislation, for the benefit of consumers, end-users and businesses within the Union.
- (20) The obligations of the economic operator with tasks regarding products subject to certain Union harmonisation legislation should be without prejudice to existing obligations and responsibilities of manufacturer, importer and authorised representative under the relevant Union harmonisation legislation.

- (21) Obligations of this Regulation requiring an economic operator to be established in the Union in order to place products on the Union's market should only apply to areas where the need for an economic operator to act as a liaison point with the market surveillance authorities has been identified, taking into account a risk-based approach, having regard to the principle of proportionality and taking into account high level of protection of end-users in the Union.

- (22) Moreover, those obligations should not apply where the specific requirements set out in certain legal instruments on products achieve the same result in effect, namely Regulation (EC) No 648/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁶, Regulation (EC) No 1223/2009, Regulation (EU) No 167/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁷, Regulation (EU) No 168/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁸, Directive 2014/28/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council¹⁹, Directive 2014/90/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁰, Regulation (EU) 2016/1628 of the European Parliament and of the Council²¹, Regulation (EU) 2017/745, Regulation (EU) 2017/746, Regulation (EU) 2017/1369 and Regulation (EU) 2018/858. Consideration should also be given to situations where potential risks or cases of non-compliance are low, or in which products are mainly traded through traditional supply chains, which is the case, for instance, for Directive 2014/33/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²², Regulation (EU) 2016/424/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²³ and Directive 2010/35/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁴.
- (23) Contact information of economic operators with tasks regarding products subject to certain Union harmonisation legislation should be indicated with the product in order to facilitate checks throughout the supply chain.

- (24) Economic operators should fully cooperate with market surveillance authorities and other competent authorities to ensure the smooth performance of market surveillance activities and to enable the authorities to perform their tasks. This includes, where requested by authorities, providing the contact information of the economic operators with tasks regarding products subject to certain Union harmonisation legislation where this information is available to them.
- (25) Economic operators should have easy access to high quality, comprehensive information. Since the single digital gateway established under Regulation (EU) 2018/1724 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁵ provides for a single point of access to information, it can be used in respect to providing relevant information on Union harmonisation legislation to economic operators. Nevertheless, Member States should put in place procedures for ensuring access to the Product Contact Point established under Regulation (EU) 2019/... of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁶⁺ in order to facilitate the economic operators in addressing properly their requests for information. Guidance on issues relating to technical specifications or harmonised standards or design of a specific product should not be part of the obligations of Member States.

- (26) Market surveillance authorities might carry out joint activities with other authorities, organisations representing economic operators or end-users, with a view to promoting compliance, identifying non-compliance, raising awareness and providing guidance on Union harmonisation legislation and with respect to specific categories of products, including those that are offered online.
- (27) Member States should designate their own market surveillance authorities. This Regulation should not prevent Member States from choosing the competent national authorities to carry out the market surveillance tasks. In order to facilitate administrative assistance and cooperation, Member States should also appoint a single liaison office. Liaison offices should at least represent a coordinated position of the market surveillance authorities and the authorities in charge of the control on products entering the Union market.
- (28) E-commerce poses certain challenges for market surveillance authorities regarding the protection of the health and safety of end-users from non-compliant products. Therefore, Member States should ensure the organisation of their market surveillance with the same effectiveness for products made available online and offline.

- (29) While performing market surveillance of products offered online, market surveillance authorities are facing numerous difficulties, such as tracing products offered for sale online, identifying the responsible economic operators, or conducting risk-assessments or safety tests due to the lack of physical access to products. In addition to the mandatory requirements introduced by this Regulation, Member States are encouraged to use complementary guidance and good practices for market surveillance and for communication with businesses and consumers.
- (30) Special attention should be given to emerging technologies, taking into account that consumers are increasingly using connected devices in their daily lives. The Union regulatory framework should therefore address the new risks to ensure the safety of the users.
- (31) In the age of constant development of digital technologies new solutions that could contribute to the effective market surveillance within the Union should be explored.

- (32) Market surveillance activities should be thorough and effective, to ensure that Union harmonisation legislation on products is applied correctly. Given that controls may represent a burden for economic operators, market surveillance authorities should organise and conduct inspection activities on a risk based approach, taking the interests of those operators into account and limiting the said burden to what is necessary for the performance of efficient and effective controls. Furthermore, market surveillance activities should be performed with the same level of care by the competent authorities of the Member State irrespective of whether non-compliance of the given product is relevant on the territory of that Member State or is likely to have an impact on the market of another Member State. Uniform conditions for certain inspection activities carried out by the market surveillance authorities when products or categories of products present specific risks or seriously breach the applicable Union harmonisation legislation might be laid down.
- (33) Market surveillance authorities, when performing their duties, are confronted with different shortcomings in terms of resources, coordination mechanisms, as well as powers with regard to non-compliant products. Such differences lead to fragmented enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation and to market surveillance being more rigorous in some Member States than in others, potentially compromising the level playing field among businesses and creating also potential imbalances in the level of product safety throughout the Union.

- (34) In order to ensure that the Union harmonisation legislation on products is correctly enforced, market surveillance authorities should have a common set of investigative and enforcement powers, allowing for enhanced cooperation between market surveillance authorities and more effective deterrence for economic operators that willingly infringe Union harmonisation legislation. Those powers should be sufficiently robust to tackle the enforcement challenges of Union harmonisation legislation, along with the challenges of e-commerce and the digital environment and to prevent economic operators from exploiting gaps in the enforcement system by relocating to Member States whose market surveillance authorities are not equipped to tackle unlawful practices. In particular, the powers should ensure that information and evidence can be exchanged between competent authorities so that enforcement can be undertaken equally in all Member States.
- (35) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the freedom of Member States to choose the enforcement system that they deem appropriate. Member States should be free to choose whether their market surveillance authorities can exercise investigation and enforcement directly under their own authority, by recourse to other public authorities, as appropriate or by application to the competent courts.

- (36) Market surveillance authorities should be in a position to open investigations on their own initiative if they become aware of non-compliant products placed on the market.
- (37) Market surveillance authorities should have access to all necessary evidence, data and information relating to the subject matter of an investigation in order to determine whether applicable Union harmonisation legislation has been infringed, and in particular to identify the economic operator responsible, irrespective of who possesses the evidence, information or data in question and regardless of where it is located and of the format in which it is held. Market surveillance authorities should be able to request third parties in the digital value chain to provide all the evidence, data and information necessary.
- (38) Market surveillance authorities should be able to carry out the necessary on-site inspections, and should have the power to enter any premises, land or means of transport, that the economic operator uses for purposes relating to his trade, business, craft or profession.
- (39) Market surveillance authorities should be able to require a representative or a relevant member of staff of the economic operator concerned to give explanations or provide facts, information or documents relating to the subject matter of the on-site inspection, and to record the answers given by that representative or competent staff member.

- (40) Market surveillance authorities should be able to check the compliance of products to be made available on the market with Union harmonisation legislation and to obtain evidence of non-compliance. They should, therefore, have the power to make test purchases and, where the evidence cannot be obtained by other means, to purchase products under a cover identity.
- (41) In the digital environment in particular, market surveillance authorities should be able to bring non-compliance to an end quickly and effectively, notably where the economic operator selling the product conceals his identity or relocates within the Union or to a third country in order to avoid enforcement. In cases where there is a risk of serious and irreparable harm to end-users due to non-compliance, market surveillance authorities should be able to take measures, where duly justified and proportionate and where there are no other means available to prevent or mitigate such harm, including, where necessary, requiring the removal of content from the online interface or display a warning. When such a request is not observed, the respective authority should have the power to require information society service provider to restrict access to the online interface. These measures should be taken in accordance with the principles laid down in Directive 2000/31/EC.

- (42) The implementation and exercise of powers in the application of this Regulation should also comply with other Union and national law, for example Directive 2000/31/EC, including with applicable procedural safeguards and principles of the fundamental rights. The implementation and exercise of powers should also be proportionate and adequate in view of the nature and the overall actual or potential harm of the infringement. Competent authorities should take all facts and circumstances of the case into account and should choose the most appropriate measures, which are essential to address the infringement covered by this Regulation. Those measures should be proportionate, effective and dissuasive. Member States should remain free to set out conditions and limits for the exercise of the powers and fulfil duties in national law. Where, for example, in accordance with national law, prior authorisation to enter the premises of natural persons and legal persons is required from the judicial authority of the Member State concerned, the power to enter such premises should be used only after such prior authorisation has been obtained.
- (43) Market surveillance authorities act in the interest of economic operators, end-users, and of the general public, to ensure that public interests covered by respective Union harmonisation legislation on products are consistently preserved and protected through appropriate enforcement measures, and that compliance with such legislation is ensured across the supply chain through appropriate checks, taking into consideration the fact that administrative checks alone, in many cases, cannot replace physical and laboratory checks in order to verify the compliance of products with the relevant Union legislation. Consequently, market surveillance authorities should ensure a high level of transparency while performing their activities and should make available to the public any information that they deem relevant in order to protect the interests of end-users in the Union.

- (44) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the functioning of RAPEX in accordance with Directive 2001/95/EC.
- (45) This Regulation should be without prejudice to the safeguard clause procedure provided for by sectoral Union harmonisation legislation, pursuant to Article 114(10) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union. With a view to ensuring an equivalent level of protection throughout the Union, Member States should be authorised to take measures in relation to products presenting a risk to health and safety, or other aspects of public interest protection. They should also be required to notify those measures to other Member States and the Commission, allowing the Commission to take a position on the justification of national measures that restrict the free movement of products with a view to ensuring the functioning of the internal market.
- (46) The exchange of information between market surveillance authorities, and the use of evidence and investigation findings should respect the principle of confidentiality. Information should be handled according to applicable national law, in order to ensure that investigations are not compromised and that the reputation of the economic operator is not prejudiced.

- (47) Where for the purposes of this Regulation it is necessary to process personal data, this should be carried out in accordance with Union law on the protection of personal data. Any processing of personal data under this Regulation is subject to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁷ and Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁸, as the case may be.
- (48) To ensure the effectiveness and consistency of testing across the Union in the market surveillance framework with regard to specific products or a specific category or group of products or for specific risks related to a category or group of products, the Commission might designate testing facilities of its own or public testing facilities of a Member State as a Union testing facility. All Union testing facilities should be accredited in accordance with the requirements of Regulation (EU) 765/2008. In order to avoid conflict of interests, Union testing facilities should only provide services to market surveillance authorities, the Commission, the Network and other government or intergovernmental entities. Procedures for the designation of Union testing facilities should be set up by implementing acts.

²⁸ Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2000 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data by the Community institutions and bodies and on the free movement of such data (OJ L 8, 12.1.2001, p. 1).

- (49) Member States should be required to ensure that adequate financial resources are always available in order to staff and equip the market surveillance authorities appropriately. An efficient market surveillance activity is demanding in terms of resources, and stable resources should be provided, at a level appropriate to the enforcement needs at any given moment. Member States should have the possibility to supplement public financing by reclaiming the costs incurred when performing market surveillance activities in relation to products that were found to be non-compliant.
- (50) Mechanisms for mutual assistance should be established, as it is imperative for the Union market for goods that the market surveillance authorities of the Member States cooperate with each other effectively. Authorities should act in good faith and, as a general principle, accept requests for mutual assistance, in particular those concerning access to declaration of conformity, declaration of performance and technical documentation.
- (51) It is appropriate that Member States designate the authorities responsible for applying the customs legislation and any other authorities in charge under national law of control on products entering the Union market.

- (52) An effective way to ensure that unsafe or non-compliant products are not placed on the Union market would be to detect such products before they are released for free circulation. Authorities in charge of the control on products entering the Union market, enjoy a complete overview of trade flows across the external borders, and should therefore be required to carry out adequate controls on a risk assessment basis, to contribute to a safer market place, which ensures a high level of protection of public interests. It is for Member States to designate the specific authorities that should be responsible for the appropriate documentary and, where necessary, physical or laboratory checks of products before those products are released for free circulation. A uniform enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products can only be achieved through systematic cooperation and exchange of information between market surveillance and other authorities designated as authorities in charge of the control on products entering the Union market. These authorities should receive well in advance from the market surveillance authorities all the necessary information concerning non-compliant products or information on economic operators where a higher risk of non-compliance has been identified. In turn, authorities in charge of the control on products entering the customs territory of the Union should inform the market surveillance authorities in a timely manner of the release of products for free circulation, and the results of controls, where such information is relevant for the enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products. Furthermore, where the Commission becomes aware of a serious risk posed by an imported product, it should inform the Member States about those risks in order to ensure coordinated and more effective compliance and enforcement controls at the first points of entry to the Union.

- (53) Importers should be reminded that Articles 220, 254 and 256-258 of Regulation (EU) No 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁹ foresee that products entering the Union market that require further processing in order to be in compliance with Union harmonisation legislation applicable to them shall be placed under the appropriate customs procedure allowing such processing by the importer. Generally, the release for free circulation should not be deemed as proof of conformity with Union legislation, as such release does not necessarily include a complete check of compliance.

²⁹ Regulation (EU) No 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 9 October 2013 laying down the Union Customs Code (OJ L 269, 10.10.2013, p.1).

- (54) In order to use the EU Single Window environment for customs and therefore to optimise and unburden the data transfer between customs and market surveillance authorities, it is necessary to set up electronic interfaces allowing automatic data transfer. Customs and market surveillance authorities should contribute to determine the data to be transmitted. Additional burden for customs authorities should be limited and the interfaces should be highly automated and easy to be used.
- (55) It is necessary to establish a Union Product Compliance Network, hosted by the Commission, aimed at structured coordination and cooperation between enforcement authorities of the Member States and the Commission, and at streamlining the practices of market surveillance within the Union facilitating the implementation of joint enforcement activities by Member States, such as joint investigations. This administrative support structure should allow the pooling of resources and maintain a communication and information system between Member States and the Commission, thereby helping to strengthen enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products and deter infringements. The involvement of Administrative Cooperation Groups (ADCOs) in the Network should not preclude the involvement of other similar groups performing administrative cooperation. The Commission should provide the necessary administrative and financial support to the Network.

- (56) There should be effective, speedy and accurate exchange of information among the Member States and the Commission. A number of existing tools, such as Information and Communication System for Market Surveillance (ICSMS) and Rapid Alert System for dangerous non-food products (RAPEX) enable coordination among market surveillance authorities in the Union. These tools, together with interface permitting data transfer from ICSMS into RAPEX should be maintained and further developed in order to exploit their full potential and help to increase the level of cooperation and exchange of information between Member States and the Commission.
- (57) In that context, for the purpose of collecting information relating to the enforcement of Union harmonisation legislation on products, ICSMS should be upgraded and be accessible to the Commission, single liaison offices, market surveillance and customs authorities. Furthermore, an electronic interface should be developed to allow effective exchange of information between national systems of customs and market surveillance authorities. With regard to the cases of mutual assistance requests the single liaison offices should give any support necessary for cooperation between the relevant authorities. Therefore, ICSMS should provide the functions enabling an automated indication to the single liaison offices when deadlines are not met. When sectoral legislation already foresees electronic systems for cooperation and data exchange, as is the case for example for medical devices by the EUDAMED system, those systems should be kept in use when appropriate.

- (58) In general, ICSMS should be used to exchange information considered helpful for other market surveillance authorities. This may include checks undertaken in the context of market surveillance projects, regardless of the outcome of the tests. The amount of data to be entered in ICSMS should strike a balance between becoming too burdensome, when the efforts for entering the data would exceed the work involved in doing the actual checks, and being comprehensive enough to support greater efficiency and effectiveness on the side of the authorities. Thus, the data entered in ICSMS should also cover simpler checks than laboratory tests only. Nevertheless, there should be no need to include just brief visual checks. As a guideline, checks which are individually documented, should also be entered in ICSMS.
- (59) Member States are encouraged to use ICSMS for interactions between customs and market surveillance authorities, as an alternative to the national systems. This should not replace the risk management system used by customs (CRMS). These two systems could work in parallel since they fulfil different, complementary roles, with ICSMS facilitating communication between customs and market surveillance authorities in order to allow for a smooth treatment of customs declarations in the scope of the product safety and compliance framework while CRMS is for customs common risk management and controls.

- (60) Injuries caused by non-compliant products are important information for market surveillance authorities. ICSMS should therefore provide for related data fields so that market surveillance authorities can enter readily available reports provided for in the course of their investigations, thus facilitating later statistical evaluations.
- (61) The Commission should be able to exchange market surveillance related information with regulatory authorities of third countries or international organisations within the framework of agreements concluded between the Union and third countries or international organisations, with a view to ensuring compliance prior to their export of products to the Union market.
- (62) In order to achieve a high degree of compliance with applicable Union harmonisation legislation on products while at the same time ensuring an effective resource-allocation and a cost-efficient control of products entering the Union market, the Commission should be able to approve specific pre-export control systems. Products falling under such approved systems might, as part of the risk assessment performed by authorities in charge of controls on products entering the Union market, benefit from a higher level of confidence than comparable products which have not been subject to a pre-export control.

- (63) The Commission should carry out an evaluation of this Regulation against the objectives it pursues, also taking into consideration new technological, economic, commercial and legal developments. Pursuant to point 22 of the Interinstitutional Agreement of 13 April 2016 on Better Law Making³⁰, the evaluation, based on efficiency, effectiveness, relevance, coherence and value added, should provide the basis for impact assessments of options for further action, particularly as regards to the scope of this Regulation, the application and enforcement of the provisions related to the tasks of economic operators placing products on the market and the system of product-related pre-export controls.
- (64) The financial interests of the Union should be protected through proportionate measures throughout the expenditure cycle, including the prevention, detection and investigation of irregularities, the recovery of funds lost, wrongly paid or incorrectly used and, where appropriate, administrative and financial penalties.
- (65) The diversity of sanctions across the Union is one of the main reasons for inadequate deterrence and uneven protection. Rules on establishing sanctions, including monetary penalties, are a matter of national jurisdiction and should, therefore, be determined by national law.

- (66) In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of this Regulation, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission in relation to the process of determining the uniform conditions for certain inspection activities, where specific risks or serious breaches of Union harmonisation legislation have been continuously identified, to the procedures for designating Union testing facilities, to statistical data covering controls performed by customs authorities with respect to products subject to Union harmonisation legislation, to details of implementation arrangements for the information and communication system and data relating to the placing of products under the customs procedure ‘release for free circulation’ transmitted by customs authorities, to the process of determining benchmarks and techniques with regard to the controls on products entering the Union market, and to approval and withdrawal of systems of product-related pre-export controls. Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council³¹.

³¹ Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 February 2011 laying down the rules and general principles concerning mechanisms for control by the Member States of the Commission's exercise of implementing powers (OJ L 55, 28.2.2011, p. 13).

- (67) Since the objective of this Regulation, namely to ensure that products placed on the Union market fulfil the requirements of Union harmonisation legislation cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States given the need for a very high degree of cooperation, interaction and coherent action of all of the competent authorities in all Member States, but can rather, by reason of its scale and effects, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve that objective.
- (68) This Regulation respects fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and present in the constitutional traditions of Member States. Accordingly this Regulation should be interpreted and applied in accordance with those rights and principles including those related to the freedom and pluralism of the media. In particular, this Regulation seeks to ensure full respect for consumer protection, the freedom to conduct a business, the freedom of expression and information, the right to property and the protection of personal data.

Tasks of economic operators

Article 4

Tasks of economic operators regarding products subject to certain Union harmonisation legislation

1. Notwithstanding any obligations set out in applicable Union harmonisation legislation, a product subject to legislation in paragraph 5 may be placed on the market only if there is an economic operator established in the Union who is responsible for the tasks set out in paragraph 3 in respect to this product.
2. For the purpose of this Article, the economic operator referred to in paragraph 1 means any of the following:
 - (a) the manufacturer is established in the Union;
 - (b) an importer, when the manufacturer is not established in the Union;
 - (c) an authorised representative who has a written mandate from the manufacturer designating him to perform tasks listed in paragraph 3 on the manufacturer's behalf;

- (d) a fulfilment service provider established in the Union with respect to products handled by it when no other economic operator as mentioned in points (a), (b) and (c) is established in the Union.
3. Without prejudice to any obligations of economic operators under the applicable Union harmonisation legislation, the economic operator referred to in paragraph 1 shall perform the following tasks:
- (a) if the Union harmonisation legislation applicable to the product provides for an EU declaration of conformity or declaration of performance and technical documentation, verifying that EU declaration of conformity or declaration of performance and technical documentation have been drawn up, keeping the declaration of conformity or declaration of performance at the disposal of market surveillance authorities for the period required by that legislation and ensuring that the technical documentation can be made available to those authorities, upon request;

- (c) when having reason to believe that a product in question presents a risk, inform the market surveillance authorities;

4. Without prejudice to the respective obligations of the economic operators under the applicable Union harmonisation legislation, the name, registered trade name or registered trade mark and the contact details, including the postal address, of the economic operator referred to in paragraph 1 shall be indicated on the product or on its packaging, the parcel or an accompanying document.

Article 8

Information to economic operators

2. The market surveillance authority in question and the parties referred to in paragraph 1 shall ensure that the agreement on joint activities does not create unfair competition between economic operators, does not affect the objectivity, independence and impartiality of the parties.
3. A market surveillance authority may use any information resulting from joint activities carried out as part of any investigation undertaken by it into non-compliance.
4. The market surveillance authority in question shall make the agreement on joint activities, including the names of the parties involved, available to the general public and shall enter it in the system referred to in Article 34.
