

Pierre-Marie Aubert is the head of the Agriculture & Food Policy Programme at the Institut du Développement Durable et des Relations Internationales (IDDRI). With a background in landscape ecology and political economy, his work focuses on food system scenario development. He combines for that a biophysical approach to food system functioning with a deep understanding of their socio-economic dimensions to identify policy levers and business solutions towards greater sustainability.