COVID-19 pandemic: lessons learned and recommendations for the future
(2022/2076(INI))

Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 438

438. Stresses that the digitalisation of work should not lead to a deterioration in workers’ rights or working conditions; recognises that digitalisation in the world of work can have negative impacts on working conditions, such as when workers are required to work longer hours or must ensure their availability outside working hours; stresses, therefore, the importance of the right to disconnect; notes that workers’ needs vary widely and emphasises the importance of developing a clear framework that simultaneously promotes personal flexibility and protects workers’ rights; points out that women are more likely to telework due to their care responsibilities, hence a gender-sensitive European framework for telework is paramount; calls on the Commission to put forward proposals that set standards for teleworking conditions throughout the European Union, with the aim of guaranteeing fair and appropriate working and employment conditions within the digital economy;
583. Is of the opinion that a European Union of Health is needed, that current NextGenerationEU funds should contribute to it and that Parliament should have a role in decision-making for these health programmes; believes, furthermore, that the necessary instruments should be deployed to enable the climate and digital transition; recommends that this transition be promoted by accelerating the shift to a climate-neutral economy while mitigating the transition challenges by reskilling and upskilling the European labour force, by incorporating the need for certain investments while maintaining sound public finances in the upcoming review of the Stability and Growth Pact, and by enhancing access to finance for innovative, green and digital technology firms and businesses, especially SMEs;
