Amendments to a draft act

Amendments by Parliament set out in two columns

Deletions are indicated in bold italics in the left-hand column. Replacements are indicated in bold italics in both columns. New text is indicated in bold italics in the right-hand column.

The first and second lines of the header of each amendment identify the relevant part of the draft act under consideration. If an amendment pertains to an existing act that the draft act is seeking to amend, the amendment heading includes a third line identifying the existing act and a fourth line identifying the provision in that act that Parliament wishes to amend.

Amendments by Parliament in the form of a consolidated text

New text is highlighted in bold italics. Deletions are indicated using either the symbol or strikeout. Replacements are indicated by highlighting the new text in bold italics and by deleting or striking out the text that has been replaced.

By way of exception, purely technical changes made by the drafting departments in preparing the final text are not highlighted.

Amendment 2 Proposal for a directive Recital 6

Text proposed by the Commission

Among the legal forms available in (6) the non-profit sector and the social economy, the legal form of the non-profit association is the choice for the large majority. In addition to contributing to the Union's objectives and to achieving goals that are in the public interest, non-profit associations make an important contribution to the internal market by engaging on a regular basis in a wide range of economic activities, for example by offering services in sectors such as social services and health, communication and information, advocacy, culture, the protection of the environment, education, recreation, sports, and in the promotion of scientific and technological advances. This is true when the pursuit of economic activities is the principal activity or objective of the non-profit association, and

(6) Among the legal forms available in the non-profit sector and the social economy, the legal form of the non-profit association is the choice for the large majority. In addition to contributing to the Union's objectives and to achieving goals that are in the public interest, non-profit associations make an important contribution to the internal market by engaging on a regular basis in a wide range of non-economic and economic activities, for example by offering services in sectors such as social services and health, communication and information, advocacy, culture, the protection of the environment, education, recreation, sports, and in the promotion of scientific and technological advances. in other cases.

Amendment 3 Proposal for a directive Recital 6 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(6a) Although the majority of the activities of non-profit organisations are currently carried out at national level, an increasing number of them are operating across borders, thereby strengthening the social cohesion between Member States and deepening the internal market. In order to ensure that the socio-economic potential of non-profit associations and related entities and their contribution to the European integration is fully exploited, all barriers, hindering the cross-border operation of their activities should be removed.

Amendment 4 Proposal for a directive Recital 7

Text proposed by the Commission

(7) A fully functioning internal market for the activities of non-profit associations is essential in order to promote economic and social growth across Member States. At present, barriers within the internal market prevent non-profit associations from extending their operations beyond their national borders, thereby hindering the effective operation of the internal market. Working towards a fully effective internal market requires full freedom of establishment for all activities which contribute to the objectives of the Union.

Amendment

A fully functioning internal market for the activities of non-profit associations is essential in order to promote economic and social growth across Member States. At present, barriers within the internal market and the lack of harmonisation prevent non-profit associations from extending their operations beyond their national borders, as they often encounter unjustifiable restrictions, thereby hindering the effective operation of the internal market. Working towards a fully effective and functioning internal market requires full freedom of establishment for all activities which contribute to the objectives of the Union thereby bolstering cohesion and cooperation throughout the Union.

Amendment 5 Proposal for a directive Recital 8

Text proposed by the Commission

(8) In order to establish a genuine internal market for the economic activities of non-profit associations, it is necessary to abolish any unjustified restrictions on the freedom of establishment, the free movement of services, the free movement of goods and the free movement of capital that still apply in the laws of certain Member States. These restrictions hinder non-profit associations from operating cross-border, not least because they impose on them a specific need to allocate resources to unnecessary administrative or compliance activities, which has a particularly deterrent effect in view of their non-profit nature.

Amendment

(8) In order to establish a genuine internal market for the economic activities of non-profit associations, it is necessary to abolish any unjustified restrictions and barriers on the freedom of establishment, the free movement of services, the free movement of goods and the free movement of capital that still apply in the laws of certain Member States. These restrictions create legal uncertainty, discourage and hinder non-profit associations from operating cross-border, not least because they impose on them a specific need to allocate resources to unnecessary administrative or compliance activities, which has a particularly deterrent effect in view of their non-profit nature. Therefore, Member States should not apply restrictive or disruptive measures which can amount to excessive or costly burden on non-profit organisations. The freedom of association does not only include the ability to create or dissolve an association but also the ability for that association to operate without unjustified interference by a Member State. It also includes the ability to seek, secure and use resources, which is essential to the operation of any association. In particular, Article 63 and 65 TFEU together with Articles 7, 8 and 12 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union (the 'Charter') enshrine the freedom of association at all levels and protect non-profit organisations against discriminatory, unnecessary and unjustified restrictions regarding the free movement of capital. This principle has been further developed by the Court of Justice in its case law, including in its judgement of 10 June

2020 in Case C-78/18, Commission vs Hungary*.

Amendment 6 Proposal for a directive Recital 9

Text proposed by the Commission

These barriers arise due to (9) inconsistencies in the national legal frameworks of Member States. The legal framework in which non-profit associations carry out their activities in the Union is based on national law, without harmonisation at Union level. Presently, non-profit associations do not receive uniform recognition of their legal personality and capacity throughout the Union and often need to register for a second time or even form a new legal entity in order to engage in activities in a Member State other than the one in which they are established. The fundamental elements concerning the mobility of nonprofit associations within the Union remain inadequately regulated, resulting in legal ambiguity for all non-profit associations with cross-border activities. For instance, when non-profit associations intend to relocate their registered office to a new Member State, uncertainties persist regarding relocation. In particular, the lack of a possibility of transferring the registered office without going through a liquidation hinders non-profit associations from acting, moving, and restructuring across borders within the Union. National rules diverge and often fail to provide clear solutions and procedures for the exercise of cross-border mobility and economic activities of non-profit associations.

Amendment

(9) These barriers arise due to inconsistencies in the national legal frameworks of Member States. The legal framework in which non-profit associations carry out their activities in the Union is based on national law, without harmonisation at Union level. Presently, non-profit associations do not receive uniform recognition of their legal personality and capacity throughout the Union and often need to follow different administrative procedures in multiple Member States, for example, to register for a second time in another Member State or even form a new legal entity in order to engage in activities in a Member State other than the one in which they are established. cross-border mobility and economic activities of non-profit associations.

Amendment 7 Proposal for a directive Recital 9 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(9a) The heterogeneity of national laws and the lack of approximation of practices also leads to an uneven playing field due to the different market conditions and the diverse obstacles that non-profit organisations face in different Member States, for example when opening bank accounts, raising and accounting funds, including foreign funds, benefitting from public support measures and schemes and verifying and complying with requirements with regard to transparency duties.

Amendment 8 Proposal for a directive Recital 10

Text proposed by the Commission

(10) The ability to access and channel funds and capital efficiently across borders is necessary in order to facilitate non-profit associations' activities in the internal market. This includes remuneration for economic activities, but also donations, inheritance, or other forms of funding. Different regulatory frameworks and existing restrictions in the Member States regarding receiving, soliciting donations, and similar contributions in whatever form result in fragmentation in the internal market and constitute a barrier to the functioning of the internal market.

Amendment

(10)The ability to access and channel funds and capital efficiently across borders is necessary in order to facilitate non-profit associations' activities in the internal market. Cooperation and the exchange of best practices between non-profit associations from different States can help to increase the efficiency and impact of their actions at European level. By promoting common standards and a cohesive approach, red tape can be reduced and cross-border financial support encouraged in a more fluid and efficient way. This includes remuneration for economic activities, but also donations, inheritance, or other forms of funding. Different regulatory frameworks and existing restrictions in the Member States regarding receiving, soliciting donations, and similar contributions in whatever form result in fragmentation in the internal market and constitute a barrier to the functioning of the internal market.

Amendment 9 Proposal for a directive Recital 11

Text proposed by the Commission

(11) Moreover, laws of certain Member States impose requirements regarding nationality or legal residence on members of non-profit associations or on members of the executive body of such non-profit associations. Such requirements should be eliminated in order to protect the exercise of freedom of establishment and freedom of association of EU citizens

Amendment

(11) Moreover, laws of certain Member States impose requirements regarding nationality or legal residence on members of non-profit associations or on members of the executive body of such non-profit associations. Such requirements should be eliminated in order to protect the exercise of freedom of establishment and freedom of association of EU citizens, which would encourage the active participation of Union citizens in various non-profit organisations, irrespective of their country of nationality or residence.

Amendment 10 Proposal for a directive Recital 11 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(11a) Taking into account their particular nature and their non-profit purpose, a large part of the activities of non-profit associations may be organised in a non-commercial way and thus be non-economic in nature.

As recognised in the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and in the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR), freedom of association is a fundamental right. Furthermore, the essential role of civil society and representative organisations in contributing to democracy at all levels is considered a fundamental value of the Union, as recognised, in particular by Article 11 of the Treaty on European Union (TEU), and requires the existence of an open, transparent and regular dialogue. This implies therefore also that frameworks for such dialogue should be used for the implementation and application of this Directive.

Amendment 12 Proposal for a directive Recital 13

Text proposed by the Commission

(13)It is therefore necessary to put in place harmonised rules facilitating the pursuit of non-profit associations' crossborder activities. Existing national rules on cross-border associations should be harmonised so that they allow those nonprofit associations to take a legal form specifically designed to facilitate operations on a cross border basis. That legal form should be provided in Member State's domestic legal orders through the adaptation of their respective rules on nonprofit associations. This legal form, which is to be designated as the 'European crossborder association', ('ECBA'), should be automatically recognised by all Member States and will allow non-profit associations to overcome the obstacles they Amendment recognised by all Member States and will allow non-profit associations to overcome the obstacles they face in the internal market, while respecting Member States' traditions regarding non-profit associations. These are important steps towards the deepening and ultimately the completion of the internal market.

Amendment 13 Proposal for a directive Recital 13 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(13a) Non-profit associations are currently not automatically recognised when they operate in a country other than the one in which they are established, and often have to set up a new entity, concerning around 310,000 associations in the EU, with 185,000 more entities likely to engage in cross-border activities within a simplified framework. The ECBA statute should facilitate the cross-border activities of non-profit associations and their mobility. The accompanying certificate should provide them with this automatic recognition and enable them to develop their activities in other Member States, thus fully enjoy the benefits of the internal market.

Text proposed by the Commission

(17) Churches and other religious organisations and philosophical or nonconfessional organisations, within the meaning of Article 17 TFEU, as well as associations of these entities, should also not be allowed to establish an ECBA, due to the lack of Union competence to regulate their status, and due to them having a particular status in national law.

Amendment

(16) Nor political parties and associations of political parties should be allowed to establish ECBAs, as they enjoy a particular status within national law and Union law as laid down in Regulation (EU, Euratom) 1141/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council ³⁹.

Amendment

(17) Churches and other religious organisations and philosophical or nonconfessional organisations, within the meaning of Article 17 TFEU, as well as associations of these entities, have a particular status in national law, which should not be adversely affected by this Directive. Therefore, these entities should also be allowed to establish or become a member of an ECBA, if they choose to do so.

Amendment

(18)The establishment of an ECBA should be the result of an agreement between natural persons that are Union citizens or legally resident third-country nationals, or legal entities established in the Union, except persons that have been convicted of offences concerning money laundering, associated predicate offences 40 , or terrorist financing or are subject to measures that prohibit their operations in a Member State on the same grounds. In this regards a proportionate level of accountability, public reporting and the transparency of financing and governance structure should be ensured. In view of the non-profit purpose of the ECBA, where an ECBA is constituted by legal entities, they should also have a nonprofit purpose.

Amendment

The non-profit purpose of an ECBA should mean that, when a profit is generated by means of economic activities, it should be used only in pursuit of the objectives of the ECBA, as defined in its statutes, and may not be redistributed directly nor indirectly among its members, including members of its governing bodies, nor among its founders or any other private parties. Amendment 19 Proposal for a directive Recital 20 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(20a) The values of the European Union enshrined in Article 2 of the Treaty on European Union should be respected both in the purpose and in the exercise of the activity of an ECBA, everywhere and at all times. To that end, the statutes of the ECBA should include a declaration that it will respect these values in its objectives and in the pursuit of its activities.

Amendment 20 Proposal for a directive Recital 21

Text proposed by the Commission

(21) The cross-border element of an ECBA is central. Therefore, an ECBA should carry out or have in its statutes the objective to carry out at least part of its activities across borders in the Union, in at least two Member States, and have founding members with links to at least two Member States, either based on citizenship or residence in the case of natural persons, or based on the location of their registered office in the case of legal entities.

Amendment

(21) The cross-border element of an ECBA is central. Therefore, an ECBA should carry out or have in its statutes the objective to carry out at least part of its activities across borders in the Union, in at least two Member States, and have founding members with links to at least two Member States, either based on citizenship or residence in the case of natural persons, or based on the location of their registered office in the case of legal entities. The notion of "cross-border" under the present Directive is without prejudice to this notion in other Union legislation.

Amendment 21 Proposal for a directive Recital 23

Text proposed by the Commission

(23)Harmonisation throughout the Union of the key features of ECBAs' legal personality and capacity and their automatic recognition across Member States and the registration procedure, without Member States laying down diverging rules on these issues, is an essential condition for ensuring a levelplaying field for all ECBAs. The aspects of ECBAs' activities that are not harmonised by this Directive should be governed by the national rules that apply to the most similar type of non-profit association in national law. Such entities, independently of their name in the domestic legal order, should in all cases be membership-based, have a non-profit purpose, and have legal personality. To ensure transparency and legal certainty, Member States should notify the Commission of those rules.

Amendment

(23)Harmonisation throughout the Union of the key features of ECBAs' legal personality and capacity and their automatic recognition across Member States and the registration procedure, without Member States laying down diverging rules on these issues, is an essential condition for ensuring a levelplaying field for all ECBAs, required under the single market, and creating legal certainty. That may lead to cost reduction, improved access to the single market for associations, increased offer and quality of services and products, better cooperation and will foster innovation. The aspects of ECBAs' activities that are not harmonised by this Directive should be governed by the national rules that apply to the single most similar or most commonly used legal form of non-profit association in national law. This applies, for example, with regard to national rules on the potential acquisition of a public benefit status or the application of employment legislation in accordance with the legislation in the Member State in which the relevant activities and operations take place. Such entities, independently of their name in the domestic legal order, should in all cases be membership-based and self-governed, have a non-profit purpose, and have legal personality. Self-governed in this context means having an institutional structure allowing the exercise of all internal and external organisational functions, and allowing the making of essential decisions to be carried out independently. To ensure transparency and legal certainty, Member States should notify the Commission and the ECBA committee of the single legal form of non-profit association that is most similar or most commonly used in national law and of the rules applicable to such legal form.

Amendment 22 Proposal for a directive Recital 23 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(23a) Associations are already permitted to acquire a public benefit status in all Member States, though the requirements for and implications of acquiring such a status are very diverse. Such preferential status, regardless of its exact denomination, entails a number of benefits. With regard to recognising or granting a public benefit status, different approaches exist in national rules throughout the Union. In some Member States, such legal status is connected, for example, with fiscal privileges or access to public funding, and associations can decide to acquire such status in addition to their legal form, provided that they satisfy specific requirements and depending on the jurisdiction in which they operate. For example, entities legally established in the form of an association can acquire the legal status and denomination of non-profit organisations, public benefit organisations, nongovernmental organisations, civil society organisations, third sector organisations, charities, provided they satisfy the legal requirements for such a status and denomination. This Directive should not affect such preferential status and should promote the activities of associations irrespective of such status under national rules. The Commission should, however, assess in the future whether it is appropriate to further develop legislation to also regulate such status at Union level.

Text proposed by the Commission

(24) To ensure that Member States have the appropriate tools to combat terrorism financing and ensure transparency of certain capital movements, the rules applicable to ECBAs under this Directive should be without prejudice to measures adopted by Member States to prevent the misuse of non-profit associations for public policy and public security reasons and to ensure transparency of certain capital movements when required by Union law, or national law in compliance with Union law.

Amendment

(24)The rules applicable to ECBAs under this Directive should be without prejudice to measures adopted by Member States to prevent the misuse of non-profit associations for public policy and public security reasons and to ensure transparency of certain capital movements, in the context of the fight against terrorism financing and money laundering, when required by Union law, or national law in compliance with Union law . Such measures should be legitimate and appropriate, not go beyond what is strictly necessary and the impact of the measure on the ECBA should be proportionate to the objective pursued. To ensure these safeguards are upheld, an application of these measures should be based on a caseby-case assessment by the Member State's competent authorities.

Amendment 24 Proposal for a directive Recital 26

Text proposed by the Commission

(26) ECBAs should be able to decide freely on their rules of operation. Any limitation on this freedom imposed by a Member State should be applied in a general and non-discriminatory way, prescribed by law, justified by an overriding reason in the public interest, and be appropriate for ensuring the attainment of the objective pursued and not going beyond what is necessary for it to be attained.

Amendment

(26) ECBAs should be able to decide freely on their rules of operation. Any limitation on this freedom imposed by a Member State should be applied in a general and non-discriminatory way, prescribed by law, justified by an overriding reason in the public interest, be appropriate and limited to what is strictly necessary, and the impact of the measure on the ECBA should proportionate to the objective pursued.

Amendment 25 Proposal for a directive Recital 27

Text proposed by the Commission

Articles 52, 62 and 65 TFEU and relevant case law also apply to ECBAs. These TFEU Articles provide for the justification of measures restricting the freedom of establishment, freedom to provide services and free movement of capital on grounds including public policy, public security and public health. Furthermore, the concept of 'overriding reasons in the public interest' to which reference is made in certain provisions of this Directive has been developed by the Court of Justice in its case law. Measures by Member States that are liable to hinder or make less attractive the exercise of those Treaty freedoms should be permitted only where they can be justified by objectives listed in the Treaty or by overriding reasons in the public interest recognised by Union law. While no exhaustive definition exists, the Court of Justice has recognised that justifications are possible on various grounds such as public policy, public security and public health, the maintenance of order in society, social policy objectives, the protection of the recipients of services, consumer protection, the protection of workers, provided that the other conditions are met. Such measures need, in any event, to be appropriate for ensuring the attainment of the objective in question and not go beyond what is necessary to attain that objective.

Such measures need, in any event, to be prescribed by law, appropriate and limited to what is strictly necessary, and the impact of the measure on the ECBA needs to be proportionate to the objective pursued. This is particularly relevant as many associations are active in the public interest areas mentioned in this recital.

Amendment 26 Proposal for a directive Recital 29

Text proposed by the Commission

(29) In order to ensure that ECBAs are able to effectively perform their activities and ensure equal treatment vis-à-vis non-profit associations in national law, ECBAs should not be treated less favourably than the most similar non-profit association in the domestic legal order of the home Member State where it operates.

Amendment 27 Proposal for a directive Recital 30

and the ECBA committee thereof. The competent authorities should keep in close contact with the Commission and the ECBA committee. The Commission should publish the list of competent authorities on a public website and update it without undue delay when changes occur. To have a comprehensive overview of the legal treatment of ECBAs in Member States, Member States should notify the Commission of the names and tasks of relevant authorities, other than the competent authorities, established or designated for the purposes of the national rules applicable to the single most similar or most commonly used legal form of nonprofit association in national law, if applicable.

Amendment 29 Proposal for a directive Recital 33

Text proposed by the Commission

(33) In view of their non-profit purpose, ECBAs should be able to apply for funding from a public or private source in the Member State(s) in which they operate on a non-discriminatory basis. There should be no restriction on the ECBA's right to receive and provide funding, except where a restriction is prescribed by law, justified by an overriding reason in the public interest, is appropriate for ensuring the attainment of the objective pursued and does not go beyond what is necessary for it to be attained and is compliant with Union law.

Amendment

(33)In view of their non-profit purpose, ECBAs should be able to apply for funding from a public or private source in the Member State(s) in which they operate on a non-discriminatory basis. Therefore, the same rules should apply to the ECBA as those applicable to the single most similar or most commonly used legal form. There should be no restriction on the ECBA's right to receive and provide funding, except where a restriction is prescribed by law, justified by an overriding reason in the public interest or where the Member State can prove that the ECBA flagrantly and repeatedly breaches the values of the Union enshrined in Article 2 TEU through its activities, where it is compliant with Union law, appropriate and limited to what is strictly necessary, and where the impact of the restriction on the ECBA is proportionate to the objective pursued.

Amendment 30 Proposal for a directive Recital 35 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(35a) In line with the right to freedom of expression and freedom of association, it is important to ensure that Member States do not limit the right to participation of associations in public life and public or political debate, which could concern for example the organisation of or participation in public interest advocacy or peaceful assembly. Such participation in the public or political debate should however not be meant to benefit any single particular political party or political candidate.

Amendment 31 Proposal for a directive Recital 36 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(36a) The possibilities offered by the digitalization should be fully exploited by Member States in order to facilitate the exercise of the freedom of association and establishment as well as in order to reduce the administrative burdens and compliance costs. To facilitate the registration process, including in the case of mergers and conversions, Member States should ensure that the application for registration may be submitted online. That should also apply to the requests for transfer of the registered office and notification for a change of information part of the ECBA certificate. Digital means should be encouraged also to facilitate and speed up, where possible, administrative procedures and cooperation.

Amendment 32

Proposal for a directive Recital 38

Text proposed by the Commission

Member States should be entitled to (38)require a registered ECBA to make a declaration, provide information, request or obtain authorisations for engaging in particular activities only where such requirements are (i) applied in a general and non-discriminatory way, (ii) prescribed by law, (iii) justified by overriding reasons in the public interest, (iv) appropriate for ensuring the attainment of the objective pursued and do not go beyond what is necessary in order for it to be attained. Such requirements may be connected, for example, to the specificities of certain sectors, like healthcare. Where Member States provide for such additional procedures, this information should be made publicly available in order to ensure that an ECBA is able to comply with these requirements.

Amendment 33 Proposal for a directive Recital 39

Text proposed by the Commission

(39) To prevent fraud, it is important that Member States verify the identity of the founding members and the legal representatives of the ECBA. The verification of identity is particularly important if the application for registration is conducted electronically. Due to the variety of different practices in Member States, the specific methods of verifying identity should remain in the prerogative of the Member State concerned.

Amendment

Member States should be entitled to (38)require a registered ECBA to make a declaration, provide information, request or obtain authorisations for engaging in particular activities only where such requirements are (i) applied in a general and non-discriminatory way, (ii) prescribed by law, (iii) justified by overriding reasons in the public interest, (iv) appropriate and limited to what is strictly necessary, and the impact of the measure on the ECBA should proportionate to the objective pursued. Where Member States provide for such additional procedures, this information should be made publicly available in a clear, easily accessible and comprehensible way, in order to ensure that an ECBA is able to comply with these requirements.

Amendment

(39) To prevent fraud and to ensure the reliability of the relevant register, it is important that Member States verify the identity of the legal representatives of the ECBA. The verification of identity is particularly important, especially if the application for registration is conducted electronically. Due to the variety of different practices in Member States, the specific methods of verifying identity should remain in the prerogative of the Member State concerned. This approach provides the necessary flexibility to take account of the specific traditions, specificities and procedures of each

Amendment 34 Proposal for a directive Recital 40

Text proposed by the Commission

(40)While respecting the freedom of establishment and association, the registration of an ECBA should be denied in cases of failure to comply with the formal requirements for the registration, as laid down in this Directive, where the application is not complete or if the objectives described in the statutes contravene Union law or national law compliant with Union law. Furthermore, the registration must be rejected, if the application fails to comply with the basic requirements set out in this Directive to constitute an ECBA, namely the non-profit purpose, the minimum number of founding members and the cross-border element in terms of activities in at least two Member States and founding members with links with at least two Member States. Any refusal to register an ECBA should be made in writing and duly reasoned by the competent authority.

become outdated, Member States should ensure that the ECBA notifies any changes concerning the information on ECBAs to the competent authority and that the information held in the register is updated. Member States should be allowed to make use of their existing national registers for the purpose of this Directive. In order to ensure transparency especially for members of an ECBA and its creditors, if applicable, the ECBA certificate, the liquidation and the dissolution of an ECBA are pieces of information that should be made publicly available for a maximum of 6 months after the dissolution of an ECBA. The interoperability solutions developed as part of the implementation of the Proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council laying down measures for a high level of public sector interoperability across the Union⁴² can further support Member States to move towards cross-border interoperability of their registers. To ensure that information about the existence of an ECBA is still available even after its dissolution, all data retained and stored in the register should be kept for 2 years after dissolution.

the decision-making body of the ECBA concerned. The ECBA should submit the request with the relevant documents to the competent authority of the Member State to which the transfer is to be made and inform in parallel the competent authority of its home Member State when submitting the request for transfer. Where applicable, the proposed statutes of the ECBA should be amended according to the requirements of the national law of the Member State to which the ECBA requests the transfer. Upon transfer of the registered office, the ECBA becomes an ECBA under the national law of the new home Member State. This change of applicable law ensuing from the transfer of the registered office should not lead, in order to avoid duplications, the competent authority of the new home Member State to verify any element already verified during the registration in the previous Member State and harmonised by this Directive. The competent authority of the Member State to which the ECBA intends to transfer the registered office should reject the request of transfer only where the requirements laid down in national law transposing this Directive are not met and should not refuse it on other grounds. In particular, the competent authority should not reject the request on the ground of non-compliance with requirements under its national law that could not have been a ground to reject the registration in accordance with Article 19. In order to facilitate the transfer of registered office of an ECBA in the internal market, the competent authority of the new home Member State should issue an updated certificate in accordance with paragraph 2 of Article 21, adapting the unique registration number and the twoletter country code of the Member State where the ECBA's office is transferred and the postal address of the registered office, as well as any other elements, if applicable.

the decision-making body of the ECBA concerned. The ECBA should submit the request with the relevant documents to the competent authority of the Member State to which the transfer is to be made and inform in parallel the competent authority of its home Member State when submitting the request for transfer. One of the relevant documents in the event of a transfer would be a report explaining the safeguards for creditors and employees, if applicable under Union or national law. Member States should ensure that the preparation of such a report does not impose an excessive administrative burden. Where applicable, the proposed statutes of the ECBA should be amended according to the requirements of the national law of the Member State to which the ECBA requests the transfer. Upon transfer of the registered office, the ECBA becomes an ECBA under the national law of the new home Member State. Amendment 37 Proposal for a directive Recital 45

In compliance with the freedom of assembly and of association, an ECBA should be dissolved only by decision of its members or by a decision of the competent authority of the home Member State. Where the dissolution of an ECBA is the result of a decision of its members, it should be taken by two-thirds of the votes representing at least half of the total of the members during an extraordinary meeting. The dissolution of an ECBA may be involuntary by decision of the competent authority of the home Member State of the ECBA, as a last resort, only where an ECBA does not respect its non-profit purpose, where its activities constitute a threat to public order, or where the members of the executive body of an ECBA have been convicted of a particularly serious criminal offence or the ECBA itself has been convicted of a criminal offence, if national law allows for this possibility. In this case, the competent authority should communicate to the ECBA a formal notice of its concerns and hear the ECBA in order to give the ECBA the opportunity to reply.

Amendment

(45)In compliance with the freedom of assembly and of association, an ECBA should be dissolved only by decision of its members or by a decision of the competent authority of the home Member State. Where the dissolution of an ECBA is the result of a decision of its members, it should be taken by two-thirds of the votes representing at least half of the total of the members. The dissolution of an ECBA may be involuntary by decision of the competent authority of the home Member State of the ECBA, as a last resort. Therefore involuntary dissolution should only happen where an ECBA does not respect its non-profit purpose, or where its activities constitute a threat to public order, or a flagrant and repeated breach of the values of the Union enshrined in Article 2 TEU through its activities has been established under the condition that the dissolution is preceded by a risk assessment, that it is prescribed by law, appropriate and strictly necessary, and that the dissolution of the ECBA is proportionate to the objective pursued. In this case, the competent authority should communicate to the ECBA a formal comprehensively reasoned notice of its concerns and hear the ECBA in order to give the ECBA the opportunity to reply or rectify the situation within a reasonable period of time. Any decision for involuntary dissolution should be duly reasoned and include a comprehensive

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(49a) In accordance with the right to good administration and the principles of efficiency and effectiveness of the public administrations, the transposition of this Directive should foster the simplification of administrative rules and the reduction of administrative costs and burdens. Member States should therefore ensure that the administrative procedures and obligations of ECBAs can be submitted online and that such procedures are easily accessible. Member States should make all the necessary information available and provide support for the administrative processes related to ECBAs.

Amendment

(49b) In view of monitoring the implementation of this directive, the Commission should be assisted by the ECBA committee composed of representatives of the Member States. In line with the Union principles and article 2 TEU in particular, the composition of the committee should be balanced. The Committee should involve, as appropriate, other relevant Union bodies and committees and stakeholders in its work, such as the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights and non-profit organisations. Public access to information on committee proceedings should be ensured in accordance with Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2001 regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The proposal for a Directive on European cross-border associations ('ECBA') follows the European Parliament's Resolution of 17 February 2022 with recommendations to the Commission on a statute for European cross-border associations and non-profit organisations¹, and as well numerous calls over time from the Parliament and civil society to give associations a European legal form.

The Commission estimates the number of non-profit associations in the Member States at 3.8 million, roughly 10% of which are active across the EU. Through their activities in various sectors, they contribute 2.9% to the EU GDP.

Civil society organisations, including but not limited to associations, continue to face various administrative burdens due to a lack of approximation of practices, unjustified restrictions and other hurdles. They are subject to attempts to restrict their activities on political grounds, including the denial, refusal or challenging of their status as public benefit organi-sation.

The rapporteur welcomes the proposal to establish an ECBA by way of establishing a legal form in all Member States.

- In addition to making the same rules applicable to the ECBA that apply to the most similar non-profit association in national law, it should be taken into account which form is the most commonly used. This is to reflect that the Directive should be fit to the established and known practices of associations under existing national rules. The ECBA should therefore be treated equally with the legal form that associations already most commonly choose, providing them with all added benefits of the ECBA.
- The ECBA is a first step to put associations in the EU at the minimum on equal footing with commercial interests, therefore inspiration was taken from the Compa-ny Law Directive² in adding provisions for the merger of existing ECBAs.
- The new ECBA Committee will foster the mutual exchange and cooperation of Member States with regards to the implementation and application of the Directive and has an advisory role towards the Commission.
- European civil society is coming increasingly under pressure from governments and administrations, in particular regarding access to funds and donations, and to their status as public benefit organisations. At the same time, associations remain instru-mental for democracy and policy making at all levels. They promote and work for the public good, they are part of the checks and balances necessary for the rule of law, and they are drivers for civic engagement of citizens. Member states should therefore not restrict activities or objectives with regard to participating in matters of public or political debate.

LETTER OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE INTERNAL MARKET AND CONSUMER PROTECTION

Mr Adrián VÁZQUEZ LÁZARA Chair Committee on Legal Affairs BRUSSELS

Subject: Opinion in the form of a letter on the proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on European cross-border associations

(COM(2023)0516 - C9-0326/2023 - 2023/0315(COD))

Dear Mr Chair,

Under the procedure referred to above, the Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection has been asked to submit an opinion to your committee. At its meeting of 19 September 2023, the committee coordinators decided to send the opinion in the form of a letter.

The Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer protection adopted its opinion in a form of a letter with the below amendments and principles and priorities at its meeting of 4 December 2023¹, and decided to call on the Committee on Legal Affairs (JURI), as the committee responsible, to incorporate the following amendments into its legislative report, and take kind note of the following principles and priorities.

Yours sincerely,

Anna CAVAZZINI Chairwoman

AMENDMENTS

IMCO₁

Recital 6a new

(6a) The majority of the activities of non-profit organisations are currently carried out at national level, although an increasing number of non-profit organisations are operating across borders, thereby strengthening the social cohesion between Member States and deepening the internal market. In order to ensure that the socio-economic potential of non-profit associations and related entities and their contribution to the European integration is fully exploited, all barriers, hindering the cross-border operation of their activities should be removed.

IMCO 2

Recital 8

(8) In order to establish a genuine internal market for the economic activities of non-profit associations, it is necessary to abolish any unjustified restrictions on the freedom of establishment, the free movement of services, the free movement of goods and the free movement of capital that still apply in the laws of certain Member States. These restrictions create legal uncertainty, discourage and hinder non-profit associations from operating cross-border, not least because they impose on them a specific need to allocate resources to unnecessary administrative or compliance activities, which has a particularly deterrent effect in view of their non-profit nature.

IMCO₃

Recital 9a new

(9a) The heterogeneity of national laws and the lack of approximation of practices also leads to an uneven playing field due to the different market conditions and the diverse obstacles that non-profit organisations face in different Member States, for example when opening bank accounts, raising and accounting funds, including foreign funds, benefitting from public support measures and schemes and verifying and complying with requirements with regard to transparency duties.

Recital 13

(13) It is therefore important to ensure harmonization at Union level and avoid any unnecessary fragmentation. Thus, it is necessary to put in place harmonised rules facilitating the pursuit of non-profit associations' cross-border activities. Existing national rules on cross-border associations should be harmonised so that they allow those non-profit associations to take a legal form specifically designed to facilitate operations on a cross border basis. That legal form should be provided in Member State's domestic legal orders through the adaptation of their respective rules on non-profit associations.

This legal form, which is to be designated as the 'European cross-border association', ('ECBA'), should be automatically recognised by all Member States and will allow non-profit associations to overcome the obstacles they face in the internal market, while respecting Member States' traditions regarding non-profit associations. These are important steps towards the deepening and ultimately the completion of the internal market.

Recital 13a new

(13a) Non-profit associations are currently not automatically recognised when they operate in a country other than the one in which they are established, and often have to set up a new entity, concerning around 310,000 associations in the EU, with 185,000 more entities likely to engage in cross-border activities within a simplified framework. Whereas the new national legal form facilitating the cross-border activities of non-profit associations and their mobility and the accompanying certificate should provide them with this automatic recognition and enable them to fully develop their activities in other Member States, thus fully enjoy the benefits of the internal market.

Recital 23

(23) Harmonisation throughout the Union of the key features of ECBAs' legal personality and capacity and their automatic recognition across Member States and the registration procedure, without Member States laying down diverging rules on these issues, is an essential condition for ensuring a level-playing field for all ECBAs, required under the single market, and creating legal certainty. That may lead to cost reduction, improved access to the single market for associations, increased offer and quality of services and products, better cooperation, more competition and will foster innovation. The aspects of ECBAs' activities that are not harmonised by this Directive should be governed by the national rules that apply to the most similar type of non-profit association in national law. Such entities, independently of their name in the domestic legal order, should in all cases be membership-based, have a non-profit purpose, and have legal personality. To ensure transparency and legal certainty, Member States should notify the Commission of those rules.

Recital 36a new

(36a) The possibilities offered by the digitalization should be fully exploited by Member States in order to facilitate the excercise of the right to freedom of association and the right to freedom of mobility as well as in order to reduce the administrative burdens and compliance costs. To facilitate the registration process, including in the case of convertion, Member States shall ensure that the application for registration may be submitted online. That should also apply to the requests for transfer of the registered office and notification for a change of information part of the ECBA certificate. Digital means should be encouraged also to facilitate and speed up, where possible, administrative procedures and cooperation.

IMCO 8

Article 14 - paragraph 1

1. Member States shall ensure that ECBAs are free to establish, to provide and receive services, and to exercise the free movement of goods in the internal market in compliance with EU law. Member States shall ensure that ECBAs are free to determine the scope of their operations.

Article 17 heading

Conversion of non-profit associations into an ECBA and mergers of existing ECBAs

IMCO 10

Article 17 - paragraph 1a new

1a. Member States shall allow existing ECBAs established in the Union to merge with another ECBA within the same Member State or established in another Member State.

IMCO 11

Article 17 - paragraph 2

2. Member States shall ensure that any conversion or merger is approved by the decision-making body of the converting or merging entity.

IMCO 12

Article 17 - paragraph 3

3. Member States shall ensure the conversion or merger shall not result in the dissolution of the non-profit association that is converting or merging or in any loss of interruption of its legal personality.

IMCO 13

Article 17 - paragraph 5

5. Member States shall ensure that the conversion or merger shall take effect upon registration of the newly constituted ECBA in accordance with Article 19.

IMCO 14

Article 17 - paragraph 6

6. Member States shall ensure that the entry concerning the non-profit association that has converted or merged is removed from any register.

IMCO 15

Article 17 - paragraph 6a new

6a. Member States shall ensure that the request for conversion or merger may be submitted online.

Article 29 heading

Reporting, evaluation and revision

IMCO 17

Article 29

By [three years after transposition deadline] at the latest, and every five years thereafter, the Commission shall submit a report to the European Parliament and to the Council on the transposition and application of this Directive. The report shall in particular analyse the impact of the measures, adopted in compliance with this Directive, on the proper functioning of the internal market, on non-profit associations, particularly on those operating in more than one Member State. The report shall also consider the adequacy and the proportionality of the measures and their impact on the third sector. To that end, the Commission may request, to the extent possible through digital tools, Member States to share aggregated data concerning ECBAs registered in their territory.

IMCO 18

Article 29 - paragraph 1a new

1a. Shall the Commission find it necessary, the report may be accompanied by proposal for adapting the Directive to legal, technical and economic developments affecting nonprofit assosiations, consumer protection and to the proper functioning of the internal market.

IMCO 19

Article 31 - paragraph 1

1. Member States shall adopt and publish, including online, the laws, regulations, and administrative provisions necessary to comply with this Directive by [1 year from the entry into force of this Directive]. They shall immediately communicate the text of those measures to the Commission.

IMCO 20

Article 31 - paragraph 1a new

1a. In the format of a structured dialogue, Member States shall consult non-profit organisations already established, registered or operating in their territory in a timely and transparent manner in the process of transposition and implementation of the provisions of this Directive.

IMCO 21

Article 31 - paragraph 2

2. When Member States adopt measures pursuant to paragraph 1, they shall contain a reference to this Directive or shall be accompanied by such a reference on the occasion of their official publication. Member States shall determine how such reference is to be made and how that statement is to be formulated.

PRINCIPLES AND PRIORITIES

In addition to the amendments set out above, on behalf of the Committee, I would like to stress that these amendments are based on the following principles and priorities:

- I. Removing the existing barriers that the non-profit associations face with regard to the exercise of all internal market freedoms: despite the increasing numbers of cross-border associations and non-profit organisations in the Union, there is currently no harmonised European legislative framework allowing them to operate and organise themselves efficiently and effectively at cross-border level. Non-profit organisations that operate across the Union often face unjustified restrictions, which hinders their activities and discourages them from extending their missions across borders. Furthermore, the regulatory and administrative barriers that the cross-border associations encounter often create unnecessary excessive costs; a comprehensive set of measures should be put in place to ensure long-term predictable, fair, adequate and enabling environment for the non-profit associations that wish to engage in cross-border activities.
- II. Creating a level playing field for the non-profit associations operating in the internal market: the lack of approximation of practices leads to an uneven playing field due to the different market conditions and the diverse obstacles that non-profit organisations face in different Member States, for example when opening bank accounts, raising and accounting funds, benefitting from public support measures and schemes and verifying and complying with requirements with regard to transparency duties. In order to achieve a fully functioning internal market, non-profit associations engaging in cross border activities should be given instruments and opportunities equivalent to those available to other organisational legal structures, thereby giving a European dimension to their organisation and activities and creating a favourable environment for their development. Removing the barriers for non-profit associations inside the internal market will lead to an increase in the services and products offered on the national markets, as well as more cooperation and competition. This will foster innovation and enhance quality for services and goods.
- III. Enhancing and encouraging the use of digital technologies: the use of digital means can help reducing the administrative burdens linked to cross-border activities of non-profit associations, and ensure efficient administrative cooperation. Furthermore, the application of digital means could facilitate the enforcement of the rules. The possibilities offered by the digitalization should be fully exploited by the Member States in order to facilitate the excercise by the non-profit associations of their right to freedom of association and the right to freedom of mobility. To facilitate the registration process, including in the case of convertion, Member States should ensure that the application for registration may be submitted online. In addition, digital means should be used to facilitate and speed up, where possibe, the procedures and the administrative cooperation.

- IV. Transparency of information: all non-profit associations should have access, including online access, to clear and easily understandable information on the conditions and procedures governing the formation, governance, registration, conversion and regulation of non-profit association, involved in cross-border activities. All administrative procedures should be clear and Member States should offer assistance services where and when necessary. Using standardised on-line procedures and entailing standardised information required for the registration of an european cross-border association is essential for the effective functioning of the internal market.
- V. Active participation: non-profit associations should be consulted about the introduction, review and implementation of any legislation, policies and practices that affect their operations, including with regard to transposition and implementation of this Directive's provisions. To that end, a regular and transparent civil dialogue should be established.
- VI. Reporting, evaluation and revision: based on the information provided by the Member States in accordance with Art. 31, the Commission shall present a report to the European Parliament and the Council on the implementation and application of this Directive no later than three years after the deadline for its transposition. That report shall analyse the impact of the measures, adopted in compliance with this Directive, on the proper functioning of the internal market, on non-profit associations, particularly on those operating in more than one Member State. The report shall also consider the adequacy and the proportionality of the measures and their impact on the third sector. Should the Commission find it necessary, the report may be accompanied by proposal for adapting the Directive to legal, technical and economic developments affecting the non-profit assosiations, consumer protection and to the proper functioning of the internal market. It should be ensured that additional laws and regulations, both on national and European level, are not unnecessarily burdensome on the organisations and are proportionate to the size of the organisations and the scope of activities. Thus, additional legislation should not result in disproportionate requirements or unduly restrict cross-border financing in line with the rules on free movement of capital laid down in the Treaties.
