2 a. Deplores the findings of the European Anti-Fraud Office's (OLAF) investigative report which found Frontex responsible for human rights violations and the cover-up of pushbacks at the EU borders, including evidence that Frontex used European taxpayer money to fund pushbacks in at least six instances, the report revealed a corrupt top-down working culture, whereby employees were systematically intimidated, actively encouraged to avoid monitoring pushbacks and share incorrect or biased information with the EU institutions; deeply regrets that the OLAF report was kept from the public for months until being leaked by the press given the seriousness of allegations and abuse of EU funding;
