to the Commission

Subject: Greek national land registry

On 3 February 2004, the Greek Government announced that it had obtained approval in principle from the Commission for a prospective operational programme entitled 'Information technology data infrastructure for a modern land registry' relating to projects concerning the establishment of the national land registry. Recently, contradictory information concerning this programme appeared in the Greek press. Can the Commission clarify the following?

What projects exactly (title and content) form part of the planned operational programme?

Do these projects concern only Athens and Thessaloniki or all urban areas in the country?

What is the overall budget for the programme (national and Community resources)?

Was the total cost of drawing up the land registry nationwide discussed during negotiations between the Greek Government and the Commission and, if so, was agreement reached on a particular sum?
