Subject: Uniform implementation of the provisions of the Access Directive on exchange of information on the telecommunications market

Does it conflict with Article 4(3) of the Access Directive (Directive 2002/19/EC¹) if a copper network provider (ULL), where there is shared use passes on wholesale price savings to all its fixed network telephony subscribers who also use the line for xDSL, when this very fact entails the network provider's wholesale unit providing its retail sales unit with information about the extent of double use of the line?
