Subject: Functioning of the EU internal energy market

The European Union has more than once acknowledged the importance of strengthening its external energy policy dimension and has agreed priority projects diversifying supply to the EU. A no less important objective is to achieve rapid results in setting up internal energy market infrastructure links and mechanisms for managing energy crises.

What plans does the Swedish Presidency have to advance the implementation of projects ensuring the functioning of the EU internal energy market and to improve coordination in relations with third countries in the area of energy security?
