to the Commission

Rule 117

Markus Ferber (PPE)

Subject: European Administrative School

For five years the Commission has been running the European Administrative School (EAS) with a view to providing further and in-service training for its officials. Against this background, can the Commission answer the following questions:

How many officials receive further training at the EAS per year? Where do they come from?

How are participants informed about the courses? Are the courses on offer advertised? How are officials chosen to take part?

What and how many courses are offered each year? Do sufficient numbers of people sign up for the courses?

What are the average costs involved for a course per participant?

What is the EAS's annual budget?
