

Question for written answer E-002980/2012
to the Commission
Rule 117
Kyriakos Mavronikolas (S&D)

Subject: Construction of a shooting range in Dikomo

I regret that I have to return to a previous question posed on the construction of a shooting range south of the village of Kato Dikomo in Kyrenia, since the Commission's answer was insufficient in respect of this sensitive issue, namely the major ecological disaster being perpetrated in occupied Dikomo and the inappropriate use of Greek-Cypriot refugee properties.

Valuable time has already been lost, since the Commission did not consider that information from a Member of the European Parliament was sufficiently reliable to persuade it to investigate the matter and put pressure on the self-styled state and on Turkey to halt the construction of the project in question.

In view of this:

Does the Commission intend to investigate the matter and, if necessary, take action to halt the construction of the shooting range?

Does it intend to take whatever action its jurisdiction allows and to ensure full transparency such that those directly concerned can have access to information regarding the developments in this matter?
