Subject: Statutory regulation of book prices

The Polish Chamber of Books has presented the authorities of the Republic of Poland with a draft law on a uniform price for books which assumes a maximum increase in the price of books of 5% in the 12 months from their appearance on the market. Only after that time would booksellers be able to alter the price.

I would like to ask the following:

Is the regulation of market prices such as that put forward by the Polish Chamber of Books in compliance with EU legislation?
