Subject: Agreement on the EU's governance model as part of the governance regulation

On 20 June, negotiators from the Commission, Council and Parliament finished working on the agreement on the European Union governance model in the context of work on the governance regulation. The new provisions call on the Member States to draw up national plans for the 2021-2030 period. These plans should cover all five dimensions of the Energy Union: security, solidarity and trust; the internal energy market; reduced demand, reduced emissions and renewable energy; and research, innovation and competitiveness.

- 1) What guarantees does the agreement give Member States that they are free to carry out their own energy policy?
- 2) Will Member States that do not comply with the prepared plans face repercussions?
