Subject: France's budgetary commitments

The 'yellow vest' movement has forced the French Government to hold off on increasing fuel tax for six months. The increase was to take effect on 1 January 2019.

The decision would appear to increase France's budget deficit for 2019 as opposed to what it committed to initially.

Does the Commission believe that this decision will increase France's budget deficit?

If so, does the Commission plan to impose sanctions on France for this increase?
