Subject: Scale of EU legislation

1) What is the total scale of all universal EU legislation, i.e. legislation applicable to EU citizens, excluding legal acts applicable to international entities, non-member countries and rules of procedure of EU bodies, etc.?

Is it possible and likely that citizens of the Union will have the opportunity to familiarise themselves with everything that the European Parliament and the Council decide to adopt on the basis of proposals from the Commission?

2) In the Commission's view, how can citizens keep up with all the new laws being adopted, given the huge volume of documents being produced? And if it agrees that this is not possible, what action will it take to slow the incessant production of new laws and the overproduction of documents by EU bodies?
