Subject: Ban on internal combustion engines from 2035

From 2035 the sale of vehicles with internal combustion engines will no longer be permitted in the EU. This measure is intended to help achieve the targets of the 'Fit for 55' climate package.¹

1. How can car dealers in the EU be prevented from suffering financial losses if, as can be expected, there is an increase in purchases of vehicles with internal combustion engines from third countries?
2. How can Italy's call for an exemption for luxury cars² be accommodated??
