The EU supports United Nations’ efforts in view of reaching a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution to the question of Western Sahara, in accordance with the United Nations Security Council resolutions, and in particular Resolution 2602 (2021).

It is not up to the EU to prejudge any possible solutions to the conflict. This question must be addressed in the ongoing negotiations under the leadership of United Nations Secretary General’s Personal Envoy Staffan de Mistura. The UN-led process is open-ended and its eventual outcome should be decided by the parties along the parameters of United Nations Security Council resolutions.
