to the Commission

Rule 138

Atidzhe Alieva-Veli (Renew)

Subject: Lifting of EU trade restrictions on poultry products following the vaccination of parent flocks for highly pathogenic avian influenza

Avian influenza is a huge problem not only for Bulgaria but also for all the other EU Member States. The lifting of marketing bans following the vaccination of parent flocks will help poultry breeders combat this highly contagious disease and provide them with peace and security in their work.

1. Does the Commission plan to lift EU trade restrictions on poultry products following the vaccination of parent flocks against highly pathogenic avian influenza?
2. If so, when can this be expected to happen?
