Subject: EU platform for the registration of people benefitting from temporary protection or adequate protection under national law

In a press release of Tuesday 31 May, the Commission announced the launch of the EU platform for the registration of people benefitting from temporary protection or adequate protection under national law. First mentioned in March, this platform will allow Member States to 'exchange information on registered persons in real time so that individuals can effectively benefit from their rights in all Member States, while addressing instances of multiple registrations and limiting possible abuse'.

1. Can the Commission guarantee that this platform, set up to help Ukrainian refugees, will not be used for so-called refugees of other nationalities?
2. Will it guarantee nation states' right to deny refugees who cannot be granted asylum status the right to enter their territory?
