The Commission agrees on the importance of all territories, including islands, and their specificities. EU policy priorities for green and digital transition are pertinent for islands and cohesion policy and other programmes already provide many opportunities for islands to support their recovery and development. However, the Commission is not planning to propose any specific territory for European Year. The Commission is currently considering the recommendations listed out in the resolution and will provide a reply to the European Parliament as part of the formal procedure established between the two institutions.
