

Question for written answer E-004172/2022
to the Commission

Rule 138

Ana Miranda (Verts/ALE)

Subject: Appropriateness of the mid-term review of the multiannual financial framework 2021-2027

The Commission plans to carry out a mid-term review of the multiannual financial framework 2021-2027 in 2024, which is the year of the European elections and thus not necessarily the most appropriate time for such a review. Many variables will have to be taken into account in view of the economic situation caused by the price crisis and the effects of inflation and the economic crisis on the people of Europe.

If this mid-term review goes ahead, what benchmarks will the Commission use to analyse funding increases?
