

Question for written answer E-003624/2023
to the Commission

Rule 138

Harald Vilimsky (ID), Georg Mayer (ID)

Subject: Majority of Poles not in favour of EU Treaty reform

A reform of the EU Treaties was only recently proposed in the European Parliament, and the Poles are now already clearly declaring their opposition to it. A survey revealed that some 52 % of Poles reject such reforms. The EU institutions often regard Polish politics with hostility and take every opportunity to verbally attack the country.

1. Is the Commission planning to ensure that similar surveys on this proposal will also be conducted in other Member States, and that the results will have an influence on decision-making?
2. Is the Commission taking the rejection of the reforms by the Poles seriously regardless, and is it intending to respond to the results of the survey?
3. What is the Commission's opinion of the fact that Euroscepticism among EU citizens could increase as a result of the planned Treaty reforms, and does it consider it a realistic response to this scepticism that other Member States may wish to leave the Union, following the example set by Brexit?
