

Question for written answer E-000213/2024
to the Commission

Rule 138

Stanislav Polčák (PPE)

Subject: Percentages for integrated territorial investment and community-led local development in post-2027 cohesion policy

In its recently adopted report on the implementation of territorial development, Parliament calls on the Commission to explore new ways to raise greater awareness of the inclusive participation of civil society and local and regional authorities. It does so in the context of the use of ITI and CLLD instruments, even taking into consideration the earmarking of a percentage to be used in post-2027 cohesion policy in the case of these instruments. As a supporter of community-led local development, I welcome this position and ask the Commission whether the proposed earmarking of a percentage also seems desirable from its point of view. I am also interested – although I am aware of the obstacles that exist – at what level this percentage might be.
