

Question for written answer E-000409/2024
to the Commission

Rule 138

Moritz Körner (Renew)

Subject: Suez Canal

Attacks on ships by Iranian-backed Houthi rebels in Yemen have led to ships being routed around the southern tip of Africa rather than taking the shorter route through the Suez Canal. This has raised shipping costs.

Has the Commission estimated what impact this will have on inflation in 2024? If so, what impact will it have? If not, why not?
