Subject: Energy programme for Europe

The need to protect the environment, together with the increased price of traditional energy sources such as gas and oil and the difficulties involved in obtaining supplies of them, make it essential for an active, cross-cutting energy policy covering at least the next 30 years to be introduced.

Is an EU energy programme for at least the next 30 years being drawn up? If so, what problems have arisen and what conclusions reached in connection with the drawing up of the programme?
