Subject: Definitive results of the anti-dumping investigation concerning footwear from China and Vietnam

The anti-dumping investigation concerning footwear from China and Vietnam has now been completed and a proposal to the Council for definitive measures has been, or is about to be, adopted by the Commission.

Can the Commission outline the main conclusions of this investigation and provide a justification for the measures proposed? Can the Commission explain, in particular, how the Community interest test has been applied in this specific case?

To what extent have new policy and methodological approaches been followed in the footwear case? How likely are such new approaches to be adopted in future cases?
