

WRITTEN QUESTION P-1326/02
by The Earl of Stockton (PPE-DE)
to the Commission

Subject: The European Arrest Warrant

Is it the opinion of the European Commission that proposals for a European Arrest Warrant, as drafted, would not cover conduct in one Member State which is not contrary to the law of that Member State?

If such conduct was illegal in another Member State, will the Commission confirm that that Member State will not be entitled to invoke the European Arrest Warrant to demand the extradition of any persons involved?

Does the Commission consider that material posted onto the Internet in one Member State, or posted abroad via international mail, is conduct occurring exclusively in that Member State?
