

WRITTEN QUESTION P-7080/08
by Hanne Dahl (IND/DEM)
to the Commission

Subject: Measures to reduce the increasing fiscal crisis

The Eurozone is explicitly not a fiscal union. That is why signs of declining fiscal creditworthiness are now evident in a number of Eurozone Member States. Indeed, Greece, Italy, Ireland, Portugal and Spain all have higher interest rate spreads over German 10-year bonds. What measures is the Commission going to take to reduce this problem of the increasing fiscal crisis in different countries?