Subject: Deloitte report

On 7 June 2017, the Single Resolution Board (SRB) and Spain's Fund for Orderly Bank Restructuring (FROB) resolved the Banco Popular, which was closed and sold to the Banco Santander for one euro.

The consulting firm Deloitte drew up a key report concerning the resolution of the Banco Popular. A number of the MEPs on Parliament's Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs have asked for the report to be made public, but the Chair of the SRB, Elke König, has stated that she will not be making the report public as it apparently contains too much confidential information.

This lack of transparency has meant total legal uncertainty for those affected, whose rights are being breached once again when they bring cases to court, because they do not know what grounds for the bank's resolution are listed in the report.

What is the Commission's view of the lack of transparency on the part of the SRB?

Is the Commission considering publishing the report?

What could be done to give those affected access to the necessary information?
