Subject: Interpretation of the guidance on interpretation and determination of capacity under the Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control Directive

In reference to the guidance on interpretation and determination of capacity under the Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control Directive, as issued by the Commission, I would like to ask the following:

Could the Commission clarify and confirm that, while the guidance document is not considered a legal text, the guidance provided on potential technical and legal limitations on capacity does not constitute a breach of the Industrial Emissions Directive and is, in fact, in line with its approach?
