Rule 138

Jonás Fernández (S&D)

Subject: Extension of the concession for the AP-66 motorway (León-Campomanes, Spain)

In 2000, the Spanish Government extended the concession for the AP-66 motorway (León-Campomanes, Spain) without first launching a tendering procedure. If it had not been decided to extend the concession for a further 29 years, until 2050, it would have ended on 17 October 2021.

In view of the provisions of Directive 2004/18/EC on public procurement, Directive 93/37/EEC concerning the coordination of procedures for the award of public works contracts, the judgment of the Court of Justice of the European Union of September 2019 (Case C-526/17) and the Commission's infringement procedure of 23 September 2021 against Italy and Spain concerning motorway concession contract rules:

Does the Commission intend to take action in the case of the extension of the concession for the AP-66 motorway (León-Campomanes, Spain), which was adopted without a prior tendering procedure?
