amendment 17

First part

‘Member States should foster equal opportunities for all by eliminating inequalities in education and training systems, including by providing access to good quality and universal inclusive early childhood education. They should raise overall education levels, reduce the number of young people leaving school, increase access to and completion of tertiary education and increase adult participation in continuing learning, particularly among learners from disadvantaged backgrounds, frequently the least qualified. Taking into account new requirements in digital, green and ageing societies, as well as existing gender stereotypes, Member States should strengthen work-based learning in their vocational education and training systems (VET) (including through quality and effective apprenticeships) and, not underestimating the importance of continuous investment in human sciences, increase the number of Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) graduates through a gender balanced approach both in medium-level VET and in tertiary education. Furthermore, where appropriate Member States should enhance the labour-market relevance of tertiary education and research, strengthen dual and cooperative trainings, improve skills monitoring and forecasting, make skills more visible and qualifications comparable, including those acquired abroad, and increase opportunities for recognising and formally validating skills and competences acquired both in and outside formal education and training. They should upgrade and increase the supply and take-up of more flexible and inclusive continuing vocational education and training. Member States should invest in jobs and social protection schemes for those who are not capable to reskill, and support, through public services, low skilled adults by helping them gain access to stable and quality employment to maintain or develop their long-term employability by boosting access to and take up of quality learning opportunities, through the implementation of Upskilling Pathways, including a skills assessment, an offer of education and training matching labour market opportunities.’

Second part

‘The right to paid educational leave for professional purposes should be encouraged, in line with relevant International Labour Organization (ILO) conventions which allow workers to attend training programmes during working hours. Member States should take the necessary measures to promote universal access to distance learning and training, taking full account of the needs of people with disabilities.’

amendment 5

First part

Text as a whole excluding the words: ‘The gender equality index could serve as one of the Semester’s tool for monitoring progress towards employment and social targets and to measure the gender effects of employment and social policies.’

Second part

‘The gender equality index could serve as one of the Semester’s tool for monitoring progress towards employment and social targets and to measure the gender effects of employment and social policies.’ without the word: ‘index’

Third part 'index'

amendment 11

First part 'The guidelines set out in the Annex shall be revised no later than one year after their adoption to take into account the COVID-19 crisis and its social and employment consequences, and to better respond to similar future crises.'

Second part 'In order to strengthen democratic decision-making, the European Parliament shall be involved in defining the Integrated Guidelines for Growth and Jobs on an equal footing with the Council.'

Renew, ECR:
amendment 3

First part 'In accordance with the TFEU the Union has developed and implemented policy coordination instruments for economic and employment policies. As part of these instruments, the present Guidelines for the Employment Policies of the Member States, together with the Broad Guidelines for the Economic Policies of the Member States and of the Union set out in Council Recommendation (EU) 2015/1184, form the Integrated Guidelines. They must support the European Green Deal, the European Pillar of Social Rights (Pillar), the revised European Social Charter, the Paris Agreement and United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and guide policy implementation in the Member States and in the Union, reflecting the interdependence between the Member States. The resulting set of coordinated European and national policies and reforms are to constitute an appropriate overall sustainable economic and employment policy mix, which should achieve positive spill-over effects,'

Second part 'while reversing the decline in collective bargaining coverage.'

Renew, PPE:
amendment 4

First part 'The Guidelines for the Employment Policies are consistent with the existing Union legislation and various Union initiatives, including the Council recommendation of 22 April 2013 on establishing a Youth Guarantee, the Council Recommendation of 15 February 2016 on the integration of the long-term unemployed into the labour market, the Council Recommendation of 19 December 2016 on Upskilling Pathways: New Opportunities for Adults, the Council Recommendation of 15 March 2018 on a European Framework for Quality and Effective Apprenticeships, the Council Recommendation of 22 May 2018 on key competences for lifelong learning, the Council Recommendation of 22 May 2019 on High-Quality Early Childhood Education and Care Systems and the Council Recommendation of 8 November 2019 on access to social protection for workers and the self-employed. Following the Council decision of 23 March 2020 to activate the so-called 'General escape clause', Member States can exercise fiscal flexibility to promote and protect quality jobs and working conditions and to finance public health and social services. The duration of the application of the 'General escape clause' has to reflect the dimension and duration of the COVID-19 crisis.'

Second part 'On the basis of the Commission's public consultation it should be examined which possible directions the development of Union fiscal rules could take.'

amendment 15

First part ‘Member States will be able to call on the assistance of the Support to mitigate Unemployment Risks in an Emergency solidarity instrument (SURE). Member States should ensure that financial assistance in this regard is only provided to undertakings that respect the applicable collective agreements. Member States should ensure that recipient undertakings refrain from making share buy backs or paying dividends to shareholders and bonuses to executives,’

Second part ‘and that these undertakings are not registered in tax havens.’

Renew, ECR, PPE:

amendment 6

First part ‘Climate change and environmental related challenges, globalisation, digitalisation and demographic change are deeply transforming European economies and societies. The Union and its Member States should work together to respond to this unprecedented situation by embedding social rights and working towards a reduction of poverty and inequality and adapt existing systems to strengthen resilience and sustainability, recognising the close interdependence of the Member States' economies and labour markets, social and environmental policies. This requires a coordinated, ambitious and effective policy action at both Union and national levels. Such policy action should encompass a boost in social and environmental investment, efficient long-term measures needed to mitigate the impact of the crisis, and financial assistance to businesses, non-profit and charitable organisations, as well as households, in particular those at risk of poverty and social exclusion. It should combine supply and demand side measures, paying due attention also to the labour market demand and supply needs, and involving the use of new technologies, while taking into account their environmental, employment and social impact.’

Second part ‘Member States and the Union should adopt long-term instruments’

Third part ‘in this regard’

Fourth part ‘and the work of the Commission on a European permanent unemployment reinsurance scheme is welcome.’

amendment 13

First part

‘Is deeply concerned by the lack of effective supervision, as revealed during the evaluation of the performance of the Danish and Estonia supervisors in the context of the Danske Bank scandal; is concerned, furthermore, about the recent Wirecard scandal, as well as the role played by and the potential shortcomings of Germany’s financial supervisory authority BaFin; notes the failure of the self-regulation of the accountancy profession again in this case; notes that the classification of this FinTech company as a ‘technology’ company instead of as a payment service provider played a central role in the regulatory failures; calls on the Commission to address this problem urgently by ensuring that payment companies are classified correctly;’

Second part

‘notes that, while the major responsibility for this regulatory scandal lies with the failure by BaFin and the Bundesbank to properly supervise and regulate the Wirecard Group, many EU institutions also have a role in supervising and regulating the various actors involved in this case, including the ECB, ESMA, the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority (EIOPA) and the European Commission; calls for the EU and the national competent authorities to start an inquiry into the missing EUR 1.9 billion and the potential impact of the group’s insolvency on pensions in the EU; demands that ESMA open an investigation into the failure by regulators to identify and stop fraudulent activity and market manipulation committed by Wirecard in its EU companies, including those based in Germany and Ireland;’
