 § 19

First part Text as a whole excluding the words: ‘such as Cambridge Analytica’ ‘from’ and ‘to the broadcast of terrorism’

Second part ‘such as Cambridge Analytica’

Third part ‘from’ and ‘to the broadcast of terrorism’

§ 36

First part

‘Stresses the need to improve the efficiency of electronic interactions between businesses and consumers in light of the development of virtual identification technologies; considers that in order to ensure the effectiveness of the DSA, the Commission should also update the regulatory framework on digital identification, namely the eIDAS Regulation; considers that the creation of a universally accepted, trusted digital identity and trusted authentication systems would be a useful tool allowing to establish securely individual identities of natural persons, legal entities and machines in order to protect against the use of fake profiles; notes, in this context, the importance for consumers to securely use or purchase products and services online without having to use unrelated platforms and unnecessarily share data, including personal data, which is collected by those platforms;’ without the words: ‘considers that the creation of a universally accepted, trusted digital identity and trusted authentication systems would be a useful tool allowing to establish securely individual identities of natural persons, legal entities and machines in order to protect against the use of fake profiles;’

Second part

‘considers that the creation of a universally accepted, trusted digital identity and trusted authentication systems would be a useful tool allowing to establish securely individual identities of natural persons, legal entities and machines in order to protect against the use of fake profiles;’

Third part

‘calls on the Commission to carry out a thorough impact assessment with regard to the creation of a universally accepted public electronic identity as an alternative to private single sign-in systems and underlines that this service should be developed so that data gathered is kept to an absolute minimum;’

Fourth part

‘consider that the Commission should assess the possibility to create an age verification system for users of digital services, especially in order to protect minors;’

§ 48

First part

Text as a whole excluding the words: ‘however’, ‘without prejudice to’ and ‘a more aligned and coordinated approach at Union level’

Second part

those words

§ 52

First part

‘Calls on the Commission to address the increasing differences and fragmentations of national rules in the Member States and to adopt clear and predictable harmonised rules and a transparent, effective and proportionate notice-and-action mechanism;’

Second part

‘it should provide sufficient safeguards, empower users to notify online intermediaries of the existence of potentially illegal online content or activities and help online intermediaries react quickly and be more transparent with the actions taken on potentially illegal content; is of the opinion that such measures should be technology-neutral and easily accessible to all actors to guarantee a high level of users' and consumers' protection;’

§ 82

First part

‘Believes that, in view of the cross-border nature of digital services, effective supervision and cooperation between Member States including exchange of information and best practices, is key to ensure the proper enforcement of the DSA;’

Second part

‘stresses that the imperfect transposition, implementation and enforcement of Union legislation by Member States creates unjustified barriers in the digital single market; calls on the Commission to address these in close cooperation with Member States;’

§ 85

- First part* ‘Calls on the Commission to assess the most appropriate supervision and enforcement model for the application of the provisions regarding the DSA, and to consider the set up of a hybrid system, based on coordination and cooperation of national and Union authorities, for the effective enforcement oversight and implementation of the DSA;’ without the words: ‘and Union’
- Second part* ‘and Union’
- Third part* ‘considers that such supervisory system should be responsible for the oversight, compliance, monitoring and application of the DSA and have supplementary powers to undertake cross-border initiatives and investigation and be entrusted with enforcement and auditing powers;’

Recital O

§ 1, point w

First part ‘note that the adoption of the TPNW by 122 countries, with it now having being signed by 80 states and ratified by 35, is evidence of the desire to achieve the objective of a nuclear weapons-free world;’

Second part ‘stress that nuclear disarmament cannot be separated from collective security and can only be achieved by taking the strategic context into account, and that it must be part of a gradual process guaranteeing the undiminished security of all while preventing any new arms race; recall that, as a means of preventing the quantitative development of nuclear weapons arsenals, the Fissile Material Cutoff Treaty is a vital and irreplaceable step towards a world free of nuclear weapons;’

§ 1, point aa

First part ‘support the regional approach as one of the important avenues for the promotion of disarmament and non-proliferation; take into account the outcome of the first session of the Conference on the Establishment of a Middle East Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone;’

Second part ‘and continue supporting the long-standing goal of drawing up a legally binding treaty enabling the establishment of a MENWFZ;’

Third part ‘encourage all participating states to do their utmost to advance in this endeavour at the second session of the Conference;’

Recital F

First part

‘whereas the crisis has accelerated the shift towards digital learning and stimulated innovation in education, such as the improvement of e-learning opportunities; whereas investment in learning technology companies in recent years has enhanced online education and e-learning solutions;’

Second part

‘whereas partnerships between business and educational establishments play a role in promoting innovation in the education sector; whereas the educational establishment should remain the final decision-maker on educational content;’

First part

‘Salutes the creativity and resourcefulness shown by education and training institutions, in particular their teaching and educational staff, and by students and parents in adapting to online and distance learning, especially in light of the fast-changing circumstances and uncertain times; salutes, similarly, the positive examples set by citizens, civil society and non-formal education providers in adapting their education practices and developing initiatives that have enabled learning to continue; calls for more efforts to scale up and increase the visibility of effective initiatives, and to promote best practices in all education sectors; calls on the Commission to provide a platform for Member States to share good practices and, in this regard, to explore possibilities for new initiatives”

Second part

‘such as the creation of a European Online University’

ECR

§ 14

First part

‘Is convinced that the crisis offers an opportunity for deep reflection on the future orientation of education and training policy and its place within the broader post-pandemic recovery agenda; underlines the central role that education plays in the green and digital transitions;’

Second part

‘recalls that the European Green Deal recognises the key role of schools, training institutions and universities in driving change;’

Recital AB

First part ‘whereas in the next decade, job polarisation is expected to grow further, and jobs in the higher and lower skills spectrum are expected to increase; whereas this trend is likely to be further reinforced by the pandemic;’

Second part ‘whereas progressive taxation is a necessary precondition for reducing overall inequality, and financing well-functioning welfare states;’

§ 8

First part Text as a whole excluding the words: ‘Welcomes the Commission’s SURE proposal as an emergency measure to support Member States’ short-time work schemes for the COVID-19 crisis, and, as a result, to increase the chances of companies obtaining the liquidity necessary for resuming economic activity and safeguarding jobs; takes note of the temporary nature of the instrument;’

Second part ‘invites the Commission, therefore, to examine the possibility of a permanent special instrument to be activated – upon request by Member States – in case of any unexpected crisis that leads to a steady rise in expenditure for short-time work schemes and similar measures;’

Recital K

First part ‘whereas the euro area unemployment rate is expected to increase from 7.5 % in 2019 to about 9.5 % in 2020, with substantial differences among Member States; whereas unemployment is set to rise unevenly across sectors, genders, age and socio-economic groups; whereas national short-time working schemes, wage subsidies and support for businesses, backed by European measures, enable jobs to be maintained and salaries to be broadly kept unchanged; whereas many jobs remain at very high risk in the medium term, and significant effort will be needed to tackle unemployment;’

Second part ‘whereas, in the future, a European unemployment reinsurance scheme could limit such differences by assisting Member States to cover the costs directly related to the creation or extension of national short-time work schemes;’

§ 19

First part ‘Recognises that humanitarian crises intensify SRHR-related challenges and recalls that in crisis zones, particularly among vulnerable groups such as refugees and migrants, women and girls are particularly exposed to sexual violence, sexually transmitted diseases, sexual exploitation, rape as a weapon of war and unwanted pregnancies; calls on the Commission and Member States to give high priority to gender equality and SRHR in their humanitarian aid response, as well as accountability and access to justice and redress for sexual and reproductive rights violations and gender-based violence, including in terms of training for humanitarian actors and existing and future funding;’

Second part ‘highlights the importance of the OECD Development Assistance Committee (DAC) Recommendation on Ending Sexual Exploitation, Abuse, and Harassment in Development Co-operation and Humanitarian Assistance; welcomes, in this context, the focus of stakeholders active in the field of development co-operation and humanitarian assistance on addressing abuse and harassment in conflict-related settings; calls on the Commission and Member States to advocate for the inclusion of women’s rights organisations, as well as women-led organisations and defenders of women’s human rights, in humanitarian coordination and decision-making structures;’

First part ‘Highlights that women’s participation in CSDP missions contributes to the effectiveness of the mission and is a driver of the EU’s credibility as a proponent of equal rights for men and women worldwide; welcomes the fact that all civilian CSDP missions have now appointed a gender adviser and calls on the military CSDP missions to do the same; encourages EU Member States to put forward women as candidates for existing vacancies; calls for all EU-deployed military and civilian personnel to be sufficiently trained on gender equality and WPS, and specifically on how to integrate a gender perspective into their tasks; regrets that the number of women working in CSDP missions and especially in military operations remains very low; urges the EEAS to promote the need for a concrete target for and political commitment to increasing the number of women in the EU’s crisis management missions and operations; urges the Member States to look at ways to strengthen recruitment and retention policies and promote women’s participation in peacebuilding and peacekeeping missions;’
