amendment 17

First part 'Due to the heterogeneous structure of the total truck fleet, some room should be given in the short term to account for particular niche uses. This may include uses such as vehicles for critical security and safety applications that cannot be fulfilled by zero-emission tailpipe technologies. The vehicles in question should constitute a limited share of the entire heavy-duty vehicle fleet.'

Second part 'The review clause should assess the possibility of applying CO₂ targets also for niche uses and uncertified vehicles.'

§ 49

First part

'Welcomes the development of the European Digital Education Content Framework that will build on cultural and creative diversity; calls on the Member States to adequately implement the recommendations into their national school and educational systems;'

Second part

'reiterates its call on the Commission to present a proposal for a Directive on quality traineeships and stresses the importance of having paid quality traineeships in the CCS;'

§ 63

First part 'Highlights that algorithmic management presents new challenges for the future of work, such as technology-enabled control and surveillance to monitor progress, time and performance, and entails a significant impact on workers' health and safety, notably their mental health and right to privacy and human dignity, as well as discriminatory treatment in recruitment processes and other areas, if sufficient human oversight is not ensured; is concerned, furthermore, that AI can undermine the freedom and autonomy of people, including in the workplace; stresses that AI solutions in the CCS must be transparent, avoid negative implications for workers and should be negotiated between the social partners; calls on the Commission to pay due attention to the effects of AI on workers' rights and well-being in an increasingly digitalised workplace in current and future legislative work.'

Second part 'including by presenting a legislative proposal on AI in the workplace'
