Paragraph 79 a (new)

79\textsuperscript{a}. Stresses the fundamental role of the cohesion policy, namely the Cohesion Fund and the structural and investment funds, in financing the investments needed for fighting climate change and ensuring social, economic and territorial cohesion; calls on the Commission and the Council to strengthen existing funds, rather than defund them; underlines the need to ensure a just allocation of the resources of the Just Transition Fund, taking into account cohesion criteria;

Paragraph 39 a (new)

39a. Underlines that keeping public ownership of public transport is the most efficient way of guiding and achieving the effective decarbonisation of the transport sector, and ensuring the public’s right to mobility; demands the reversal of ongoing or already completed liberalisation in the transport sectors, which generally lead to the degradation of the infrastructure, the equipment and the services provided; appeals to the Member States to implement free public transport systems, integrating single and multimodal ticketing into the various transport systems, as well as public vehicle sharing systems, ensuring universal accessibility, while creating disincentives on private car use;

Paragraph 80 a (new)

80a. Considers that the EU’s cap on national borrowing of 3% of GDP as prescribed in the Stability and Growth Pact - or, even worse, the zero structural deficit required by the Fiscal Compact - severely inhibits any ecological transition by forcing Member States to cut public investment; calls for the Fiscal Compact to be repealed, and calls on the Commission and the Council to replace the Stability and Growth Pact with an Employment and Sustainability Pact, and in the meantime to immediately exclude environmental and social public investment from the deficit rule; calls for the State aid rules to be repealed to allow for public investment in the transition, public services and social protection; advocates a fundamental shift from competition to complementarity in international trade, and acknowledges the sovereign right of the Member States to shape their own trade policies in accordance with this principle; calls for an end to all free trade agreements;
