view to establishing an independent ethics body;

- B. whereas the recent corruption revelations have rightly increased public and political scrutiny of the current standards and practices within Parliament and other institutions; whereas the independence, transparency and accountability of public institutions and their elected representatives, Commissioners and officials are of the utmost importance for fostering citizens' trust, which is necessary for democratic institutions to function legitimately;
 - C. whereas ethics standards already exist within the EU institutions, but are very fragmented and rely solely on a self-regulatory approach; whereas the creation of an independent ethics body could contribute to strengthening trust in the EU institutions and their democratic legitimacy;
 - D. whereas the Meroni doctrine developed by the Court of Justice of the European Union allows for the delegation of EU institutions' competences to external bodies, including competences that are not yet exercised;
1. Reiterates its deep shock at and condemnation of the alleged acts of corruption in the European Parliament and states its zero-tolerance policy on corruption in any shape or form;
 2. Reiterates its support for the establishment of an independent ethics body, as outlined in its resolution of 16 September 2021, in order to restore citizens' trust in the EU institutions;
 3. Urges the Commission to submit, by the end of March 2023, its proposal to establish an independent ethics body for the European Parliament and the Commission that is open to the participation of all institutions and agencies of the EU, and to finalise the negotiations on the body's structure, governance, name, composition and powers, as well as on any other issues that might arise, before the summer recess;
 4. Insists that a clear distinction between criminal acts, breaches of institutional rules, and unethical behaviour needs to be made;
 5. Considers that the new EU ethics body should be delegated a list of agreed tasks to propose and advise on cases and rules for Commissioners, Members of the European Parliament and staff of the participating institutions before, during and in some instances after their term of office or service in line with the applicable rules;
 6. Recalls that the body should have the right to start investigations on its own and to conduct on-the-spot and records-based investigations using the information that it has collected or that it has received from third parties; recalls that the body should also have the possibility to check the veracity of declarations of financial interests;
 7. Recalls that its proposal envisages a nine-person body composed of ethics experts;
 8. Stresses the need for the body to protect whistleblowers, in particular European public officials, so that they can express their concerns about possible violations of rules without the fear of reprisals;

9. Recommends that the independent ethics body should have the possibility to engage in cooperation and information exchange with relevant EU bodies such as the European Anti-Fraud Office, the European Public Prosecutor's Office, the European Ombudsman and the European Court of Auditors, within their respective mandates;
10. Recommends the adoption of harmonised and adequate cooling-off periods by all EU institutions and the strengthening of their enforcement;
11. Suggests reinforcing and making full use of the sanctions procedures within the European Parliament without delay, while working towards the establishment of an independent ethics body;
12. Commits to working as fast as possible in accordance with the principle of sincere cooperation in order to finalise the negotiations by the summer; calls on its Conference of Presidents to appoint its negotiators and send a letter to open negotiations with the Commission and other institutions, agencies and bodies that are willing to join;
13. Instructs its President to send this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the governments and parliaments of the Member States.
