THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 114 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the European Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee¹,

Having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions²,

Acting in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure³,

Whereas:

- (1) Council Directive 85/577/EEC of 20 December 1985 to protect the consumer in respect of contracts negotiated away from business premises⁴ and Directive 97/7/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 May 1997 on the protection of consumers in respect of distance contracts⁵ lay down a number of contractual rights for consumers.
- (2) Those Directives have been reviewed in the light of experience with a view to simplifying and updating the applicable rules, removing inconsistencies and closing unwanted gaps in the rules. That review has shown that it is appropriate to replace those two Directives by a single Directive. This Directive should accordingly lay down standard rules for the common aspects of distance and off-premises contracts, moving away from the minimum harmonisation approach in the former Directives whilst allowing Member States to maintain or adopt national rules in relation to certain aspects.
- (3) Article 169(1) and point (a) of Article 169(2) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU) provide that the Union is to contribute to the attainment of a high level of consumer protection through the measures adopted pursuant to Article 114 thereof.

- (4) In accordance with Article 26(2) TFEU, the internal market is to comprise an area without internal frontiers in which the free movement of goods and services and freedom of establishment are ensured. The harmonisation of certain aspects of consumer distance and off-premises contracts is necessary for the promotion of a real consumer internal market striking the right balance between a high level of consumer protection and the competitiveness of enterprises, while ensuring respect for the principle of subsidiarity.
- (5) The cross-border potential of distance selling which should be one of the main tangible results of the internal market is not fully exploited. Compared with the significant growth of domestic distance sales over the last few years, the growth in cross-border distance sales has been limited. This discrepancy is particularly significant for Internet sales for which the potential for further growth is high. The cross-border potential of contracts negotiated away from business premises (direct selling) is constrained by a number of factors including the different national consumer protection rules imposed upon the industry. Compared with the growth of domestic direct selling over the last few years, in particular in the services sector, for instance utilities, the number of consumers using this channel for cross-border purchases has remained flat. Responding to increased business opportunities in many Member States, small and medium-sized enterprises (including individual traders) or agents of direct selling companies should be more inclined to seek business opportunities in other Member States, in particular in border regions. Therefore the full harmonisation of consumer information and the right of withdrawal in distance and off-premises contracts will contribute to a high level of consumer protection and a better functioning of the business-to-consumer internal market.

- (6) Certain disparities create significant internal market barriers affecting traders and consumers. They increase compliance costs to traders wishing to engage in the cross-border sale of goods or provision of services. Disproportionate fragmentation also undermines consumer confidence in the internal market.
- (7) Full harmonisation of some key regulatory aspects will considerably increase legal certainty for both consumers and traders. Both consumers and traders will be able to rely on a single regulatory framework based on clearly defined legal concepts regulating certain aspects of business-to-consumer contracts across the Union. The effect of such harmonisation will be to eliminate the barriers stemming from the fragmentation of the rules and to complete the internal market in this area. Those barriers can only be eliminated by establishing uniform rules at Union level. Furthermore consumers will enjoy a high common level of protection across the Union.
- (8) The regulatory aspects to be harmonised should only concern contracts concluded between traders and consumers. Therefore, this Directive should not affect national law in the area of contracts relating to employment, contracts relating to succession rights, contracts relating to family law and contracts relating to the incorporation and organisation of companies or partnership agreements.

- (9) As far as business-to-consumer contracts are concerned, this Directive establishes rules on information to be provided for distance contracts, off-premises contracts and contracts other than distance and off-premises contracts. This Directive also regulates the right of withdrawal for distance and off-premises contracts and harmonises certain provisions dealing with the performance and some other aspects of consumer contracts.
- (10) The provisions of this Directive should be without prejudice to Regulation (EC) No 593/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 June 2008 on the law applicable to contractual obligations (Rome I)¹.
- (11) This Directive should be without prejudice to Union provisions relating to specific sectors, such as medicinal products for human use, medical devices, privacy and electronic communications, patients' rights in cross-border healthcare, food labelling and the internal market for electricity and natural gas.
- (12) The information requirements provided for in this Directive should complete the information requirements of Directive 2006/123/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 December 2006 on services in the internal market² and Directive 2000/31/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 8 June 2000 on certain legal aspects of information society services, in particular electronic commerce, in the Internal Market (Directive on electronic commerce)³. The possibility for Member States to impose additional information requirements applicable to service providers established in their territory is maintained.
- (13) Member States should remain competent, in accordance with Union law, to apply the provisions of this Directive to areas not falling within its scope. Member States may therefore maintain or introduce national legislation corresponding to the provisions of this Directive or certain of its provisions in relation to transactions that fall outside the scope of this Directive. For instance, Member States may decide to extend the application of the rules of this Directive to legal persons or to natural persons who are not 'consumers' within the meaning of this Directive, such as non-governmental organisations, start-ups or small and medium-sized enterprises. Member States may similarly apply the rules of this Directive to contracts that are not 'distance contracts' within the meaning of this Directive, for example because they are not concluded under an organised distance sales or service-provision scheme. Moreover, Member States may also maintain or introduce national provisions on issues not specifically addressed in the Directive, such as additional rules concerning sales contracts, including in relation to delivery of goods, or requirements for the provision of information during the existence of a contract.
- (14) This Directive should not affect national law in the area of contract law insofar as contract law aspects are not regulated in this Directive. Therefore, this Directive should be without prejudice to national law regulating for instance the conclusion or the validity of a contract (such as lack of consent). Similarly, this Directive should not affect the general contractual legal remedies, the rules on public economic order, for instance rules on excessive or extortionate prices, and the rules on unethical legal transactions.

- (15) This Directive should not harmonise language requirements applicable to consumer contracts. Therefore, Member States may maintain or introduce in their national law linguistic requirements regarding contractual information requirements and contract terms.*
- (16) This Directive should not affect national laws on legal representation such as the rules relating to the person who is acting in the name of the trader or on his behalf (such as an agent or a trustee). Member States should remain competent in this area. This Directive should apply to all traders, whether public or private.*
- (17) The definition of consumer should cover natural persons who are acting outside their trade, business, craft or profession. However, if the contract is concluded for purposes partly within and partly outside the person's trade (dual purpose contracts) and the trade purpose is so limited as not to be predominant in the overall context of the supply, that person should also be considered as a consumer.*
- (18) This Directive does not affect the freedom of Member States to define, in conformity with Union law, what they consider to be services of general economic interest, how those services should be organised and financed, in compliance with State aid rules, and which specific obligations they should be subject to.*
- (19) Digital content means data which are produced and supplied in digital form, such as computer programs, applications, games, music, videos or texts irrespective of whether it is accessed through downloading or streaming, from a tangible medium or through any other means. Contracts for the supply of digital content should fall within the scope of this Directive. If digital content is supplied on a tangible medium, such as a CD or a DVD, it should be considered as goods within the meaning of this Directive. As with contracts for the supply of water, gas or electricity, where they are not put up for sale in a limited volume or set quantity, or district heating, contracts for digital content not supplied on a tangible medium should be classified neither as sales contracts nor as service contracts for the purpose of this Directive. For such contracts, the consumer should have a right of withdrawal unless he has consented to the beginning of the performance during the withdrawal period and has acknowledged that he will consequently lose the right to withdraw from the contract. In addition to the general information requirements, traders should inform consumers about the functionality and the relevant interoperability of the digital content. The notion of functionality should refer to the ways in which digital content can be used, for instance tracking of consumer behaviour, as well as the absence or presence of any technical restrictions, for instance protection via Digital Rights Management or region coding. The notion of relevant interoperability is meant to describe the information regarding the standard hardware and software environment with which the digital content is compatible, for instance the operating system, the necessary version, certain hardware features. The Commission should examine the need for further harmonised provisions in respect of digital content and submit, if necessary, a legislative proposal for addressing this matter.*

I

(20) The definition of distance contract should cover all cases where contracts are concluded between the trader and the consumer under an organised distance sales or service-provision scheme, with the exclusive use of one or more means of distance communication (such as mail order, Internet, telephone or fax), up to and including the time at which the contract is concluded. It should also cover situations where the consumer merely visits the business premises for the purpose of gathering information about the goods or services and the subsequent negotiation and conclusion of the contract takes place at a distance. By contrast, a contract which is negotiated at the business premises of the trader and finally concluded by means of distance communication should not be considered a distance contract. Neither should a contract initiated by distance communication, but finally concluded at the business premises of the trader be considered a distance contract. Similarly, the concept of distance contract should not include the reservations made by a consumer through a means of distance communications to request the provision of a service from a professional, such as in the case of a consumer phoning to request an appointment with a hairdresser. The notion of an organised distance sales or service-provision scheme should include those schemes offered by a third party other than the trader but used by the trader, such as an online platform. It should not, however, cover cases where websites offer purely information on the trader, his goods and/or services and how the trader can be contacted.

(21) An off-premises contract should be defined as a contract concluded with the simultaneous physical presence of the trader and the consumer, in a place which is not the business premises of the trader, for example at the consumer's home or workplace. In an off-premises context, consumers may be under potential psychological pressure or may be confronted with an element of surprise, irrespective of whether or not they have solicited the trader's visit. The definition of an off-premises contract should also include situations where the consumer is personally and individually addressed in such circumstances but the contract is concluded immediately afterwards on the business premises of the trader or through a means of distance communication. The definition of an off-premises contract should not cover situations in which the trader first comes to the consumer's home strictly with a view to taking measurements or giving an estimate without any commitment of the consumer and where the contract is then concluded only at a later point in time on the trader's premises or via means of distance communication on the basis of the trader's estimate. In those cases, the contract is not to be considered as having been concluded immediately after the trader has addressed the consumer if the consumer has taken time to reflect upon the estimate of the trader before concluding the contract. Purchases made during an excursion organised by the trader during which he carries out the promotion and sale of the products acquired should be considered as off-premises contracts.

(22) Business premises should include premises in whatever form (such as shops, stalls or lorries) which serve as a permanent or usual place of business for the trader. Market stalls and fair stands should be treated as business premises if they fulfil this requirement. Retail premises where the trader carries out his activity on a seasonal basis, for instance during the tourist season at a ski or beach resort, should be treated as business premises as the trader carries on his activity therein on a usual basis. The spaces accessible to the public, such as streets, shopping malls, beaches, sports facilities and public transport, which the trader uses on an exceptional basis for his business activities as well as private homes or workplaces should not be regarded as business premises. The business premises of a person acting in the name or on behalf of the trader as defined in this Directive should be considered as business premises within the meaning of this Directive.

(23) Durable media should enable the consumer to store the information for as long as it is relevant for him to protect his interests stemming from his relationship with the trader. Such media should include in particular paper, USB sticks, CD-ROMs, DVDs, memory cards or the hard disks of computers as well as electronic mails.

(24) A public auction implies that traders and consumers attend or are given the possibility to attend the auction in person. The goods or services are offered by the trader to the consumer through a bidding procedure authorised by law in some Member States, to sell goods at public sale. The successful bidder is bound to purchase the goods or services. The use of on-line platforms for auction purposes which are at the disposal of consumers and traders should not be considered as a public auction within the meaning of this Directive.

(25) Contracts related to district heating should be covered by this Directive, similarly to the contracts for the supply of water, gas and electricity. District heating refers to the supply of heat, inter alia in the form of steam or hot water, from a central source of production through a transmission and distribution system to multiple buildings, for the purpose of heating.

(26) Contracts related to the transfer of rights in immovable property or the creation of such rights, contracts for the construction of new buildings or the substantial conversion of existing buildings as well as contracts for rental of accommodation for residential purposes are already subject to a number of specific requirements in national legislation. These include for instance sales of immovable property still to be developed and hire-purchase. The provisions of this Directive are not appropriate to those contracts. For these reasons, this Directive should not apply to such contracts. A substantial conversion is a conversion comparable to the construction of a new building, for example where only the façade of an old building is retained. Service contracts in particular those related to the construction of annexes to buildings (for example a garage or a veranda) and those related to repair and renovation of buildings other than substantial conversion should be included in the scope of this Directive, as well as contracts related to the services of a real estate agent and those related to the rental of accommodation for non-residential purposes.

(27) Transport services cover passenger transport and transport of goods. Passenger transport should be excluded from the scope of this Directive as it is already subject to other Union legislation, or in the case of public transport and taxis, subject to regulation at national level. However, the provisions protecting consumers against excessive fees for the use of means of payment or against hidden costs should apply also to passenger transport contracts. In relation to transport of goods and car rental which are services, consumers should benefit from the protection afforded by this Directive, with the exception of the right of withdrawal.

- (28) In order to avoid administrative burden being placed on traders, Member States may decide not to apply provisions of this Directive where goods or services of a minor value are sold off-premises. The monetary threshold should be established at a sufficiently low level as to exclude only purchases of small significance. Member States should be allowed to define this value in their national legislation provided that it does not exceed EUR 50. When two or more contracts with related subjects are concluded at the same time by the consumer, the total cost thereof should be taken into account for the purpose of applying this threshold.
- (29) Social services have fundamentally distinct features that are reflected in sector-specific legislation, partially at Union level and partially at national level. Social services include, on the one hand, services for particularly disadvantaged or low income persons as well as services for persons and families in need of assistance in carrying out routine, everyday tasks and, on the other hand, services for all people who have a special need for assistance, support, protection or encouragement in a specific life phase. These cover, inter alia, services for children and youth, assistance services for families, single parents and older persons, and services for migrants. They cover both short-term and long-term care services, for instance provided by home care services, in assisted living facilities and residential homes or housing (“nursing homes”). Social services are not only those provided by the State at a national, regional or local level by providers mandated by the State or by charities recognised by the State but also those provided by private operators. The provisions of this Directive are not appropriate to social services which should be thus excluded from its scope.
- (30) Healthcare requires special regulations because of its technical complexity, its importance for services of general interest as well as its extensive public funding. Healthcare is defined in Directive 2011/24/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 9 March 2011 on the application on patients' rights in cross-border healthcare¹ as "health services provided by health professionals to patients to assess, maintain or restore their state of health, including the prescription, dispensation and provision of medicinal products and medical devices". Health professional is defined in that Directive as a doctor of medicine or a nurse responsible for general care or a dental practitioner or a midwife or a pharmacist within the meaning of Directive 2005/36/EC of 7 September 2005 on the recognition of professional qualifications² or another professional exercising activities in the healthcare sector which are restricted to a regulated profession as defined in point (a) of Article 3(1) of Directive 2005/36/EC. The provisions of this Directive are not appropriate to healthcare which should be thus excluded from its scope.
- (31) Gambling should be excluded from the scope of this Directive. Gambling activities are those which involve wagering at stake with pecuniary value in games of chance, including lotteries, gambling in casinos and betting transactions. Member States should be able to adopt other, including more stringent, consumer protection measures in relation to such activities.

- (32) The existing Union legislation inter alia relating to consumer financial services, package travel and timeshare contains numerous rules on consumer protection. For this reason, this Directive should not apply to contracts relating to these areas. With regard to financial services, Member States should be encouraged to draw inspiration from existing Union legislation in that area when legislating in areas not regulated at Union level, in such a way that a level playing field for all consumers and all contracts relating to financial services is ensured.
- (33) Traders should be obliged to inform consumers in advance of any arrangement resulting in the consumers paying a deposit to the trader, including an arrangement whereby an amount is blocked on the consumers' credit or debit card.
- (34) The consumer should be given clear and comprehensible information before he is bound by any distance or off-premises contract, any contract other than an off-premises or a distance contract or any corresponding offer. In providing that information, the trader should take into account the specific needs of consumers who are particularly vulnerable because of their mental, physical or psychological infirmity, age or credulity in a way which the trader could reasonably be expected to foresee. However, taking into account such specific needs should not lead to different levels of consumer protection.
- (35) The information to be provided to the consumer should be mandatory and should not be altered. Nevertheless, the contracting parties should be able to expressly agree to change the content of the contract subsequently concluded, for instance the arrangements for delivery.
- (36) In the case of distance contracts, the information requirements should be adapted to take into account the technical constraints of certain media, ■ as the restrictions on the number of characters on certain mobile telephone screens or the time constraint on television sales spots. In such cases the trader should comply with a minimum set of information requirements and refer the consumer to another source of information, for instance by providing a toll free telephone number or a hypertext link to a webpage of the trader where the relevant information is directly available and easily accessible. As to the requirement to inform the consumer of the cost of returning the goods which by their nature cannot normally be returned by post, the trader would comply, for example, if he specifies one carrier (for instance the one he assigned for the delivery of the good) and one price concerning the cost of returning the goods. Where the cost of returning the goods cannot reasonably be calculated in advance by the trader, for example because the trader does not offer to arrange for the return of the goods himself, the trader should provide a statement that such a cost will be payable, and that this cost may be high, along with a reasonable estimation of the maximum cost, which could be based on the cost of delivery to the consumer.
- (37) Since in the case of distance sales, the consumer is not able to see the goods before concluding the contract, he should have a right of withdrawal. For the same reason, the consumer should be allowed to test and inspect the goods he wants to buy to the extent necessary to establish the nature, characteristics and functioning of the goods. Concerning off-premises contracts, the consumer should have the right of withdrawal because of the potential surprise element and/or psychological pressure.

Withdrawal from the contract should terminate the obligations of the contracting parties to perform the contract.

- (38) In the case of online contracts, trading websites should indicate clearly and legibly at the latest at the beginning of the ordering process whether any delivery restrictions apply and which means of payment are accepted.
- (39) It is important to ensure for distance contracts concluded through websites that the consumer is able to fully read and understand the main elements of the contract before placing his order. To that end, provision should be made for those elements to be displayed in the close vicinity of the confirmation requested for placing the order. It is also important to ensure that, in such situations, the consumer is able to determine the moment at which he assumes the obligation to make a payment to the trader. Therefore, the consumer's attention should specifically be drawn, through an unambiguous formulation, to the fact that placing the order entails the obligation to make a payment to the trader.
- (40) The current varying lengths of the withdrawal periods both between the Member States and for distance and off-premises contracts cause legal uncertainty and compliance costs. The same withdrawal period should apply to all distance and off-premises contracts. In the case of services contracts, the withdrawal period should expire 14 days from the conclusion of a contract. In the case of sales contracts, the withdrawal period should expire 14 days from the day when the consumer or a third party other than the carrier and indicated by the consumer acquires physical possession of the goods, while the consumer should be able to exercise the right to withdraw before the receipt of goods. Where multiple goods are ordered by the consumer in one order but are delivered separately, the withdrawal period should start when the consumer acquires physical possession of the last good. Where goods are delivered in multiple lots or pieces, the withdrawal period should begin from the day on which the consumer acquires the material possession of the last lot or piece.
- (41) In order to ensure legal certainty, it is appropriate that Council Regulation (EEC, Euratom) No 1182/71 of 3 June 1971 determining the rules applicable to periods, dates and time limits¹ should apply to the calculation of the periods contained in this Directive. Therefore, all periods contained in this Directive should be understood to be expressed in calendar days. Where a period expressed in days is to be calculated from the moment at which an event occurs or an action takes place, the day during which that event occurs or that action takes place should not be considered as falling within the period in question.
- (42) The provisions relating to the right of withdrawal should be without prejudice to the Member States' laws and regulations governing the termination or non-enforceability of a contract or the possibility for the consumer to fulfil his contractual obligations before the time fixed in the contract.

- (43) If the trader has not adequately informed the consumer █ prior to the conclusion of a distance or off-premises contract, the withdrawal period should be extended. However, in order to ensure legal certainty over time, a twelve-month limitation period should be introduced **■ .

- (44) Differences in the ways in which the right of withdrawal is exercised in the Member States have caused costs for traders selling cross-border. The introduction of a harmonised model withdrawal form that the consumer may use should simplify the withdrawal process and bring legal certainty. For these reasons, Member States should refrain from adding any presentational requirements to the Union-wide model form relating for example to the font size. However, the consumer should remain free to withdraw in using his own words, provided that his statement to the trader is unequivocal. A letter, a telephone call or returning the goods with a clear statement could meet this requirement, but the burden of proof of having withdrawn within the time limits fixed in the Directive would be incumbent on the consumer. For this reason, it is in the interest of the consumer to make use of a durable medium when communicating his withdrawal to the trader.
- (45) As experience shows that many consumers and traders prefer to communicate via the trader's website, there should be a possibility for the trader to give the consumer the option of filling in a web-based withdrawal form. In this case the trader should provide an acknowledgement of receipt for instance by e-mail without delay.
- (46) In the event of withdrawal the trader should reimburse all payments received from the consumer, including those covering the expenses borne by the trader to deliver goods to the consumer. The reimbursement should not be made by voucher unless the consumer has expressly agreed. If the consumer expressly chooses a certain type of delivery (for instance 24-hour express delivery), although the trader had offered a common and generally acceptable type of delivery which would have incurred lower delivery costs, the consumer should bear the difference in costs between these two types of delivery.
- (47) Some consumers exercise their right of withdrawal after having used the goods to an extent more than necessary to establish the nature, characteristics and functioning of the goods. In this case the consumer should not lose the right to withdraw but should be liable for any diminished value of the goods. In order to establish the nature, characteristics and functioning of the goods, the consumer should only handle and inspect it in the same manner as he would be allowed to do in a shop. For example, the consumer should only try on a garment and should not be allowed to wear it. Consequently, the consumer should handle and inspect the goods with due care during the withdrawal period. The provisions of Article 14 should not discourage the consumer from benefiting from his right of withdrawal.
- (48) The consumer should be required to send back the goods no later than 14 days after having informed the trader about his decision to withdraw. In situations where the trader or the consumer does not fulfil the obligations connected with the exercise of the right of withdrawal, penalties provided for by national legislation in accordance with Article 24 should apply as well as contract law provisions.
- (49) Certain exceptions from the right of withdrawal should exist, both for distance and off-premises contracts. A right of withdrawal could be inappropriate for example given the nature of particular goods or services. That is the case for example with wine supplied a long time after the conclusion of the contract of a speculative nature where the value is dependent on fluctuations in the market ("vin en primeur"). The right of withdrawal should neither apply to goods made to the consumer's specifications or which are clearly personalised such as tailor-made curtains, nor to the supply of fuel, for example, which is a good, by nature inseparable after delivery from other items. The application of a right of withdrawal could also be inappropriate for certain services where the conclusion of the contract implies the setting aside of capacity which, if a right of withdrawal was introduced, the trader may find difficult to fill. This would for example be the case when reservations are made at hotels or concerning holiday cottages or cultural or sporting events.

- (50) On the one hand, the consumer should benefit from his withdrawal right even in case he has asked for the provision of services before the end of the withdrawal period. On the other hand, if the consumer does exercise his right of withdrawal, the trader should be assured to be adequately paid for the service he has provided. The calculation of the proportionate amount should be based on the price agreed in the contract unless the consumer demonstrates that that total price is itself disproportionate, in which case the amount to be paid shall be calculated on the basis of the market value of what has been provided. The market value is defined by comparing the price of an equivalent service performed by other traders at the time of the conclusion of the contract. Therefore the consumer should request the provision of services before the end of the withdrawal period by making this specific request expressly in the case of distance contracts or on a durable medium in the case of off-premises contracts. Similarly, the trader should inform the consumer on a durable medium of any obligation to pay the proportionate costs for the service already provided. For contracts having as their object both goods and services, the rules provided for in this Directive on the return of goods should apply to the goods aspects and the compensation regime for services should apply to the services aspects.

- (51) █ The main difficulties encountered by consumers and one of the main sources of disputes with traders are about delivery of goods, including goods getting lost or damaged during transport and late or partial delivery. Therefore it is appropriate to clarify and harmonise the national rules on when delivery should occur. The place and modalities of delivery and the rules concerning the determination of the conditions for the transfer of the ownership of the goods and the moment at which such transfer takes place, should remain subject to national law and therefore should not be affected by this Directive. These rules should include the possibility for the consumer to allow a third party to acquire on his behalf the physical possession or control of the goods. The consumer should be considered to have control of the goods where he or a third party indicated by the consumer has access to the goods to use them as an owner, or the ability to resell the goods (for example, when he has received the keys or possession of the ownership documents).

- (52) In the context of █ sales contracts, the delivery of goods can take place in various ways, either immediately or at a later date. If the parties have not agreed on a specific delivery date, the trader should deliver the goods as soon as possible, but in any event not later than thirty days from the day of the conclusion of the contract. The rule regarding the late delivery should also take into account goods to be manufactured or acquired specially for the consumer which cannot be reused by the trader without considerable loss. Therefore, a rule which grants an additional reasonable delay to the trader in certain circumstances should be provided for in this Directive. When the trader has failed to deliver the goods in the time agreed with the consumer, before the termination of the contract, the consumer should call upon the trader to make the delivery within a reasonable additional period and be entitled to terminate the contract. However, this rule should not apply when the trader has refused to deliver the goods in an unequivocal statement. Neither should it apply in certain circumstances where the delivery period is essential such as, for example, a wedding dress which should be delivered before the wedding. Nor should it apply in circumstances where the consumer informs the trader that delivery on a specified date is essential. For this purpose, the consumer may use the contact details given in accordance with this Directive. In these specific cases, if the trader fails to deliver the goods on time, the consumer is entitled to terminate the contract immediately after the expiry of the delivery period initially agreed. This Directive should be without prejudice to national provisions on the way the consumer should notify the trader of his will to terminate the contract.

- (53) In addition to the consumer's right to terminate the contract where the trader has failed to fulfil his obligations to deliver in accordance with this Directive, the consumer may, in accordance with the applicable national law, have recourse to other remedies, such as to allow an additional time for delivery, enforce the performance of the contract, withhold payment, and seek damages.
- (54) In accordance with Article 52(3) of Directive 2007/64/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 November 2007 on payment services in the internal market¹, Member States should be able to prohibit or limit traders' right to request charges from consumers taking into account the need to encourage competition and promote the use of efficient payment instruments. In any event, traders should be prohibited from charging consumers fees that exceed the cost borne by the trader for the use of a certain means of payment.
- (55) When the goods are dispatched by the trader to the consumer, the moment of the transfer of risk could be, in case of loss or damage, a source of disputes. Therefore a rule which provides that the consumer should be protected against any risk of loss or damage of the goods occurring before he has acquired the physical possession of the goods should be inserted in this Directive. The consumer should be protected during a transport arranged or carried out by the trader, even where the consumer has chosen a particular delivery method from a range of options offered by the trader. On the other hand, this Directive should not apply to contracts where it is up to the consumer to take delivery of the goods himself or to ask a carrier to take delivery. Regarding the moment of the transfer of the risk, a consumer should be considered to have acquired the physical possession of the goods when he has received them.

- (56) Persons or organisations regarded under national law as having a legitimate interest in protecting consumer contractual rights should be afforded legal remedies for initiating proceedings, either before a court or before an administrative authority which is competent to decide upon complaints or to initiate appropriate legal proceedings.

- (57) It is necessary that Member States lay down penalties for infringements of the provisions of this Directive and ensure that they are enforced. The penalties should be effective, proportionate and dissuasive.
- (58) The consumer should not be deprived of the protection granted by this Directive. Where the law applicable to the contract is that of a third country, Regulation (EC) No 593/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 June 2008 on the law applicable to contractual obligations (Rome I)¹ should apply, in order to determine whether the consumer retains the protection granted by this Directive.
- (59) The Commission, following consultation with the Member States and stakeholders, will look into the most appropriate way to ensure that all consumers are made aware of their rights at the point of sale.
- (60) Since inertia selling, which consists of unsolicited supplies of goods or services to consumers, is prohibited by Directive 2005/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 May 2005 concerning unfair business-to-consumer commercial practices in the internal market ('Unfair Commercial Practices Directive')² but no contractual remedy is provided therein, it is necessary to introduce in this Directive the contractual remedy of exempting the consumer from the provision of any consideration for such unsolicited supplies.
- (61) Directive 2002/58/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 July 2002 concerning the processing of personal data and the protection of privacy in the electronic communications sector (Directive on privacy and electronic communications)³ already regulates unsolicited communications and provides for a high level of consumer protection. The corresponding provisions on the same issue contained in Directive 97/7/EC should therefore be deleted.
- (62) It is appropriate to review this Directive if some barriers to the internal market were identified. In its review, the Commission should pay particular attention to the possibilities granted to Member States to maintain or introduce specific national provisions including in certain areas of Council Directive 93/13/EEC⁴ and Directive 1999/44/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council⁵. That review could lead to a Commission proposal to amend this Directive, which may include amendments to other consumer protection legislation reflecting the Commission's Consumer Policy Strategy commitment to review the acquis in order to achieve a high, common level of consumer protection.

⁵ OJ L 171, 7.7.1999, p. 12

- (63) Directives 93/13/EEC and 1999/44/EC should be amended to require Member States to inform the Commission about the adoption of specific national provisions in certain areas.
- (64) Directives 85/577/EEC ■ and 97/7/EC ■ should be repealed.
- (65) Since the objective of this Directive, namely, through the achievement of a high level of consumer protection, to contribute to the proper functioning of the internal market, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States and can therefore be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary in order to ■ achieve that objective.
- (66) This Directive respects the fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.
- (67) In accordance with point 34 of the Interinstitutional agreement on better law making¹, Member States are encouraged to draw up, for themselves and in the interests of the Union, their own tables, which will, as far as possible, illustrate the correlation between this Directive and the transposition measures, and to make them public,

5. The information referred to in paragraph 1 shall form an integral part of the distance or off-premises contract and shall not be altered unless the parties expressly agree otherwise.

6. If the trader has not complied with the information requirements on additional charges or other costs as referred to in point (e) of paragraph 1, or on the costs of returning the goods as referred to in points (i) of paragraph 1, the consumer shall not bear those charges or costs.

7. Member States may maintain or introduce in their national law linguistic requirements regarding the contractual information, so as to ensure that such information is easily understood by consumers.

8. The information requirements laid down in this Directive are in addition to information requirements contained in Directive 2006/123/EC and Directive 2000/31/EC and do not prevent Member States from imposing additional information requirements in accordance with those Directives.

Without prejudice to subparagraph 1, if a provision of Directive 2006/123/EC or Directive 2000/31/EC on the content and the manner in which the information is to be provided conflicts with a provision of this Directive, the provision of this Directive shall prevail.

9. As regards compliance with the information requirements laid down in this Chapter, the burden of proof shall be upon the trader.

Article 7

Formal requirements for off-premises contracts

1. With respect to off-premises contracts, the information provided for in Article 6 shall be given to the consumer on paper or, if the consumer agrees, on another durable medium. That information shall be legible and in plain, intelligible language.

2. The trader shall provide the consumer with a copy of the signed contract or the confirmation of the contract on paper or, if the consumer agrees, on a different durable medium, including, where applicable, the confirmation of the consumer's consent and acknowledgement in accordance with point (m) of Article 16.

3. Where a consumer wishes the performance of services or the supply of water, gas or electricity, where they are not put up for sale in a limited volume or set quantity, or of district heating to begin during the withdrawal period provided for in Article 9(2), the trader shall require that the consumer makes such an express request on a durable medium.

4. With respect to off-premises contracts where the consumer has explicitly requested the services of the trader for the purpose of carrying out repair or maintenance for which the trader and the consumer immediately perform their contractual obligations and where the payment to be made by the consumer does not exceed EUR 200:

- (a) the trader shall provide the consumer with the information referred to in points (b) and (c) of Article 6(1) and information about the price or the manner in which the price is calculated together with an estimate of the total price, on paper or, if the consumer agrees, on another durable medium. The trader shall provide the information referred to in points (a), (h) and (k) of Article 6(1), but may refrain from providing it on paper or another durable medium if the consumer expressly agrees;*
- (b) the confirmation of the contract provided in accordance with paragraph 2 of this Article shall contain the information provided for in Article 6(1).*

Member States may decide not to apply this paragraph.

2. If a distance contracts to be concluded by electronic means places the consumer under an obligation to make a payment, the trader shall make the consumer aware in a clear and prominent manner, and directly before the consumer places his order, of the information provided for in points (a), (e), (n) and (o) of Article 6(1).

The trader shall ensure that the consumer, when placing his order, explicitly confirms that the order implies an obligation to pay. If placing an order entails activating a button or a similar function, the button or similar function shall be labelled in an easily legible manner only with the words "order with duty of payment" or a corresponding unambiguous formulation indicating that placing the order entails an obligation to make a payment to the trader. If this subparagraph is not complied with, the consumer shall not be bound by the contract or order.

3. Trading websites shall indicate clearly and legibly at the latest at the beginning of the ordering process whether any delivery restrictions apply and which means of payment are accepted.

4. If the contract is concluded through a medium which allows limited space or time to display the information, the trader shall provide ■, on that particular medium prior to the conclusion of such a contract, at least the pre-contractual information regarding the main characteristics of the good or service, the identity of the trader, the total price, the right of withdrawal, the duration of the contract and, if the contract is of indeterminate duration, the conditions for terminating the contract, referred to in points (a), (b), (e), (h) and (n) of Article 6(1). The other information referred to in Article 6 shall be provided by the trader to the consumer in an appropriate way in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article.

5. Without prejudice to paragraph 4, if the trader makes a telephone call to the consumer with a view to concluding a distance contract, he shall disclose his identity and, where applicable, the identity of the person on whose behalf he makes that call, and the commercial purpose of the call at the beginning of the conversation with the consumer.

6. Where a distance contract is to be concluded by telephone, Member States may provide that the trader has to confirm the offer to the consumer who is committed only once he has signed the offer or has sent his written consent. Member States may also provide that such confirmations have to be made on a durable medium.

7. The trader shall provide the consumer with the confirmation of the contract concluded, including, where applicable, of the consent and acknowledgement of the consumer in accordance with point (m) of Article 16, and all the information referred to in Article 6(1), on a durable medium, in reasonable time after the conclusion of the distance contract, and at the latest at the time of the delivery of the goods or before the performance of the service begins, unless the information has already been given to the consumer prior to the conclusion of the distance contract on a durable medium.

8. Where a consumer wishes the performance of services, or the supply of water, gas or electricity, where they are not put up for sale in a limited volume or set quantity or of district heating, to begin during the withdrawal period provided for in Article 9(2), the trader shall require that the consumer makes such an express request.

9. This Article shall be without prejudice to the provisions on the conclusion of e-contracts and the placing of e-orders set out in Articles 9 and 11 of Directive 2000/31/EC.

10. Member States shall not impose any further formal pre-contractual information requirements for the fulfilment of the information obligations laid down in this Directive.

Article 9 Right of withdrawal ■

1. Subject to exceptions referred to in Article 16, the consumer shall have a period of 14 days to withdraw from a distance or off-premises contract, without giving any reason, and without incurring any costs other than those provided for in Article 13(2) and Article 14.

2. Without prejudice to Article 10, the withdrawal period referred to in paragraph 1 shall expire after 14 days from:

- (a) in the case of service contracts, the day of the conclusion of the contract;
- (b) in the case of sales contracts, the day on which the consumer or a third party other than the carrier and indicated by the consumer acquires physical possession of the goods or:
 - (i) in the case of multiple goods ordered by the consumer in one order and delivered separately, the day on which the consumer or a third party other than the carrier and indicated by the consumer acquires physical possession of the last good;
 - (ii) in the case of delivery of a good consisting of multiple lots or pieces, the day on which the consumer or a third party other than the carrier and indicated by the consumer acquires physical possession of the last lot or piece;
 - (iii) in the case of contracts for regular delivery of goods during defined period of time, the day on which the consumer or a third party other than the carrier and indicated by the consumer acquires physical possession of the first good;
- (c) in the case of contracts for the supply of water, gas or electricity, where they are not put up for sale in a limited volume or set quantity, of district heating or of digital content which is not supplied on a tangible medium, the day of the conclusion of the contract.

3. The Member States shall not prohibit the parties from performing their contractual obligations during the withdrawal period. Nevertheless, in the case of off-premises contracts, Member States may maintain existing national legislation prohibiting the trader from collecting the payment during the given period after the conclusion of the contract.

Article 10

Omission of information on the right of withdrawal

1. If the trader has not provided the consumer with the information on the right of withdrawal as required by point (h) of Article 6(1), the withdrawal period shall expire 12 months from the end of the initial withdrawal period, as determined in accordance with Article 9(2).

2. If the trader has provided the consumer with the information provided for in paragraph 1 within 12 months from the day referred to in Article 9(2), the withdrawal period shall expire 14 days upon which the day where the consumer receives that information.

Article 11

Exercise of the right of withdrawal

1. Before the expiry of the withdrawal period, the consumer shall inform the trader of his decision to withdraw. For this purpose, the consumer may either:

- (a) use the model withdrawal form as set out in Annex I(B); or
- (b) make any other unequivocal statement setting out his decision to withdraw.

Member States shall not provide for any ■ formal requirements applicable to the model withdrawal form other than those set out in Annex I(B).

2. The withdrawal period referred to in Article 9(2) and Article 10 is met if the communication concerning the exercise of the right of withdrawal is sent by the consumer before that period has expired.

3. *The trader may, in addition to the possibilities referred to in paragraph 1, give the option to the consumer to electronically fill in and submit either the model withdrawal form set out in Annex I(B) or any other unequivocal statement on the trader's website. In those cases the trader shall communicate to the consumer an acknowledgement of receipt of such a withdrawal on a durable medium without delay.*

4. The burden of proof of exercising the right of withdrawal in accordance with this Article shall be incumbent on the consumer.

Article 12 Effects of withdrawal

The exercise of the right of withdrawal shall terminate the obligations of the parties:

Article 13 Obligations of the trader in case of withdrawal

1. The trader shall reimburse all payments received from the consumer, including, if applicable, the costs of delivery without undue delay and in any event not later than 14 days from the day on which he is informed of the consumer's decision to withdraw in accordance with Article 11.

The trader shall carry out the reimbursement referred to in the first subparagraph using the same means of payment as the consumer used for the initial transaction, unless the consumer has expressly agreed otherwise and provided that the consumer does not incur any fees as a result of such reimbursement.

2. Notwithstanding paragraph 1, the trader shall not be required to reimburse the supplementary costs, if the consumer has expressly opted for a type of delivery other than the least expensive type of standard delivery offered by the trader.

The consumer shall only bear the direct cost of returning the goods unless the trader has agreed to bear them or the trader failed to inform the consumer that the consumer has to bear them.

In the case of off-premises contracts where the goods have been delivered to the consumer's home at the time of the conclusion of the contract, the trader shall at his own expense collect the goods if, by their nature, those goods cannot be normally returned by post.

2. The consumer shall only be liable for any diminished value of the goods resulting from the handling other than what is necessary to establish the nature, characteristics and functioning of the goods. The consumer shall in any event not be liable for diminished value of the goods where the trader has failed to provide notice of the right of withdrawal in accordance with point (h) of Article 6(1).

3. Where a consumer exercises the right of withdrawal after having made a request in accordance with Article 7(3) or Article 8(8), the consumer shall pay to the trader an amount which is in proportion to what has been provided until the time the consumer has informed the trader of the exercise of the right of withdrawal, in comparison with the full coverage of the contract. The proportionate amount to be paid by the consumer to the trader shall be calculated on the basis of the total price agreed in the contract. If the total price is excessive, the proportionate amount shall be calculated on the basis of the market value of what has been provided.

4. The consumer shall bear no cost for:

Without prejudice to Article 15 of Directive 2008/48/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 April 2008 on credit agreements for consumers¹, if the consumer exercises his right of withdrawal from a distance or an off-premises contract in accordance with Articles 9 to 14 of this Directive, any ancillary contracts shall be automatically terminated, without any costs for the consumer that are not provided for in Article 13(2) and in Article 14 of this Directive.

2. Articles 19, 21 and 22 shall apply to sales and services contracts and to contracts for the supply of water, gas, electricity, district heating and digital content.

Article 18 Delivery

2. Where the trader has failed to fulfil his obligation to deliver the goods at the time agreed upon with the consumer or in time in accordance with paragraph 1, the consumer shall call upon him to make the delivery within a period appropriate to the circumstances. If the trader fails to deliver the goods within the appropriate time, the consumer shall be entitled to terminate the contract.

In those cases, if the trader fails to deliver the goods at the time agreed upon with the consumer or in accordance with paragraph 1, the consumer shall be entitled to terminate the contract immediately.

Article 21

Communication by telephone

Member States shall ensure that in the event that the trader operates a telephone line for the purpose of contacting him by telephone in relation to the contract concluded, the consumer, when contacting the trader, is not bound to pay more than the basic rate.

Article 22

Additional payments

Before the consumer is bound by the contract or offer, the trader shall seek the express consent of the consumer to any extra payment in addition to the remuneration agreed upon for the trader's main contractual obligation. Statement by the European Parliament on correlation tables

The European Parliament regrets that the Council was not prepared to accept the mandatory publication of correlation tables in the context of the proposal for a Directive on consumer rights. It is hereby declared that the agreement reached between the European Parliament and the Council in the trilogue of 6 June 2011 concerning this Directive does not prejudice the outcome of interinstitutional negotiations on correlation tables.

The European Parliament calls on the Commission to inform it within twelve months after adoption of this agreement in plenary and to make a report at the end of the transposition period on the practice of Member States in drawing up their own tables illustrating, as far as possible, the correlation between this Directive and the transposition measures, and to make them public.

The European Parliament welcomes the agreement reached on including in the Directive on consumer rights mandatory reporting requirements concerning those provisions of this Directive, Council Directive 93/13/EEC and Directive 1999/44/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council, which grant the Member States a regulatory choice (Articles 29, 32 and 33).
