EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

Exchange of letters authenticating the Maltese-language version of the Protocol of 26 October 2004[1]

Since Switzerland's refusal to join the European Economic Area (EEA) in 1992, bilateral agreements (referred to as 'bilateral agreements I') have been negotiated in order to minimise the undesirable consequences of this refusal. These agreements, which cover such fields as the free movement of persons, land transport, air transport, agriculture, research, technical barriers to trade and public contracts, entered into force on 1 June 2002.

The accession to the European Union of the ten new Member States on 1 May 2004 did not automatically result in these agreements being extended to the new Member States, particularly the agreement in question concerning free movement of persons. To enable the new Member States to accede to this agreement, it is necessary for them to conclude a separate enlargement protocol with Switzerland pursuant to Article 6(2) of the Act of Accession[2]. Council Decision 2006/245/EC of 27 February 2006 approves the conclusion of this Enlargement Protocol[3].

The Enlargement Protocol is a mixed international agreement with the European Community and all its Member States; it must therefore be available in all the official languages of the European Union[4], including Maltese.

As the Maltese version of the Enlargement Protocol was not available in time for the date of signature, 26 October 2004, the agreement concluded by the negotiators permitted the contracting parties to sign the Protocol while providing for authentication of the Maltese version by an exchange of letters as provided for by Article 9(2) of the Enlargement Protocol. The Enlargement Protocol entered into force on 1 April 2006 in all the official languages except Maltese. The agreement, in the form of an exchange of letters between the European Community and its Member States of the one part and the Swiss Confederation of the other part, has the aim of authenticating the Maltese version of the Protocol of 26 October 2004. The Enlargement Protocol was concluded on the basis of Articles 310 and 300 of the EC Treaty, which provide for the assent of the European Parliament, and accordingly the exchange of letters[5] amending the Protocol must undergo the same procedure.

The Commission proposal concerning the Council decision approving the exchange of letters between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Swiss

[1] This concerns the Protocol to the Agreement between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Swiss Confederation, of the other, on the free movement of persons, regarding the participation, as contracting parties, of the Czech Republic, the Republic of Estonia, the Republic of Cyprus, the Republic of Latvia, the Republic of Lithuania, the Republic of Hungary, the Republic of Malta, the Republic of Poland, the Republic of Slovenia and the Slovak Republic, pursuant to their accession to the European Union, OJ L 89, 28.3.2006, p. 30.
[2] OJ L 236, 23.9.2003, p. 33.
[3] OJ L 89, 28.3.2006, p. 28.
[4] Regulation No 1/1958 of 15 April 1958, OJ 17, 6.10.1958, p. 385/58. Last amended by the Act of Accession of 2003.
[5] The exchange of letters between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Swiss Confederation, of the other, authenticating the Maltese-language version of the Protocol of 26 October 2004.

Confederation, of the other part, is therefore of a purely administrative character. The Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs recommends that Parliament give its assent.
