A. whereas gender equality is a fundamental value and an objective of the EU; whereas gender-based violence is an extreme form of discrimination against women and one of the biggest obstacles to achieving gender equality;

Amendment

A. whereas gender equality is a fundamental value and a core objective of the EU, and should be reflected in all EU policies); whereas the right to equal treatment and non-discrimination is a fundamental right enshrined in the Treaties<sup>1a</sup> and the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights<sup>2a</sup>; and should be fully respected; whereas gender-based violence in all its forms constitutes an extreme form of discrimination against women and a violation of human rights entrenched in gender inequality, which it contributes to perpetuate and reinforce; whereas this kind of violence originates from gender stereotypes on the roles and capabilities of women and men and from unequal power relations in societies and maintains them; , it remains widespread and affects women at all levels of society, regardless of age, education, income, social position or country of origin or residence , and it is one of the most serious obstacles to achieving gender equality; whereas women and children across the EU are not equally protected against gender-based violence due to differing policies and legislation across the Member States ;

B. whereas, in spite of numerous instances of formal recognition and progress having been made on gender equality, women and men do not enjoy the same rights in practice and social, economic and cultural inequalities persist;

Amendment

B. whereas, in spite of numerous instances of formal recognition and progress having been made on gender equality, women are still discriminated and disadvantaged and social, economic and cultural inequalities persist; whereas according to the EIGE Gender Equality Index 2020, no EU country has yet fully achieved equality between women and men; whereas the EU's progress on gender equality is still slow, with the index score improving on average by one point every two years; whereas at this rate, it will take almost 70 years for the EU to reach gender equality; whereas this Parliament has already called for the establishment of a new Council configuration of Ministers and Secretaries of state in charge of gender equality;

C. whereas intimate partner violence refers to any act of physical, sexual, psychological or economic violence that occurs between former or current spouses or partners, whether or not the perpetrator shares or has shared a residence with the victim; whereas intimate partner violence is one of the most prevalent forms of gender-based violence, with an estimated 22 % of women having experienced physical and/or sexual violence, and 43 % having experienced psychological violence by their partner<sup>6</sup>; whereas women and children are disproportionately affected by this type of violence; whereas domestic violence is a serious and often hidden social problem that can cause systematic physical and psychological trauma with serious consequences for the victims, as the perpetrator is a person the victim should be able to trust;

Amendment

C. whereas intimate partner violence refers to any act of physical, sexual, psychological or economic violence that occurs between former or current spouses or partners, whether or not the perpetrator shares or has shared a residence with the victim; whereas intimate partner violence is one of the most prevalent forms of gender-based violence, with an estimated 22 % of women having experienced physical and/or sexual violence, and 43 % having experienced psychological violence by their partner<sup>3</sup>; whereas women and children are disproportionately affected by this type of violence; whereas domestic violence refers to “all acts of physical, sexual, psychological or economic violence that occur within the family or domestic unit or between former or current spouses or partners, whether or not the perpetrator shares or has shared the same residence with the victim”<sup>4</sup>; whereas domestic violence is a serious and often long-term and hidden social problem that causes systematic physical and/or psychological trauma with serious consequences for the victims and with severe impact on the emotional, economic and social well-being of the whole family, as the perpetrator is a person the victim should be able to trust; whereas between 70% and 85% of children who are victims of violence know their abuser and the vast majority of children are victims of people they trust;<sup>5</sup> whereas victims are often subjected to coercive control from their abuser, characterized by intimidation, control, isolation and abuses;

D. whereas the lockdown and social distancing measures during the COVID-19 pandemic have been associated with an exponential increase in the prevalence and intensity of intimate partner violence cases in many Member States, resulting from forced confinement within the home and making it difficult for women to access effective protection and support; whereas in spite of the prevalence of the phenomenon, intimate partner violence against women remains under-reported in the EU and there is a significant lack of comprehensive data;

Amendment

D. whereas the lockdown and social distancing measures during the COVID-19 pandemic have been associated with an exponential increase in the prevalence and intensity of cases of intimate partner violence, psychological violence and coercive control and cyber violence, and with a 60% increase in emergency calls reported by victims of domestic violence, in many Member States<sup>6</sup>; whereas the confinement within the home and the alarming upsurge of the “shadow pandemic” made it difficult for women and children to access effective protection, support services and justice and revealed insufficient support resources and structures as well as limited access to support services for victims, leaving many of them without adequate and timely protection; whereas best practices on specific measures to provide timely and accessible assistance to victims, including setting up emergency texting systems or creating contact points to seek help in pharmacies and supermarkets should be shared among Member States across Europe; whereas in spite of the prevalence of the phenomenon, intimate partner violence against women remains under-reported in the EU by the victims, their families, friends, acquaintances and neighbours, for various reasons, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic, and there is a significant lack of comprehensive, comparable and gender-disaggregated data making it difficult to fully assess the impact of the crisis; whereas the survey by the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) on violence against women indicates that victims report their most serious incidents of partner violence to the police in only 14 % of cases , and that two thirds of female victims systematically do not report to the authorities, either out of fear or a lack of information about victim's rights, or due to a general belief that intimate partner violence is a private matter, which should not be publicised <sup>7</sup>;

COMP 5

Recital Da (new)

Covered: AM67 (EPP), AM 109 (Left), AM138 (EPP)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

D b. Whereas the economic violence against women, in the form of property damage, restricting access to financial resources, education or the labour market, or not complying with economic responsibilities such as alimony, deserves due attention, as hampering the financial independence and the family wealth going hand in hand with the other forms of violence, and resulting in an additional trap for victims; whereas the victims that are not financially independent are often forced to stay with their perpetrator within the same residence to avoid financial insecurity, homelessness or poverty and this tendency was enhanced through the COVID-19 pandemic; whereas fair remuneration and economic independence are essential for enabling women to leave an abusive and violent relationship; whereas in some Member States the enforcement of court decisions related to financial compensation can require the victim to stay in contact with the abuser, putting her at further physical and emotional risk ;

Motion for a resolution

E. whereas children may suffer ‘witnessed violence’ in the family environment, through experiencing any form of ill-treatment, carried out through acts of physical, verbal, psychological, sexual and economic violence against reference figures or other affectively significant figures; whereas such violence has very serious consequences for the psychological and emotional development of the child, and whereas it is therefore essential to pay due attention to this type of violence in separations and parental custody arrangements, taking the best interests of the child into account, in particular in order to determine custody and visitation rights in separation cases;

Amendment

E. whereas children may also suffer what is called ‘witnessed violence<sup>7a</sup>’ in the home and family environment, through experiencing any form of ill-treatment, carried out through acts of physical, verbal, psychological, sexual and economic violence against reference figures or other affectively significant figures; whereas such violence has very serious consequences for the psychological and emotional development of the child, and whereas it is therefore essential to pay due attention to this type of violence in separations and parental custody arrangements, ensuring that the best interests of the child are the primary consideration, in particular in order to determine custody and visitation rights in separation cases; whereas witnessed violence is not always easily recognisable and whereas women victims of domestic violence live in a state of tensions and emotional difficulty; whereas in cases involving both domestic violence and child protective issues, courts should refer to experts with the knowledge and tools to avoid decisions against the mother that do not properly take all circumstances into account;

Motion for a resolution

F. whereas, in order to address the issue of the eradication of gender-based violence, it is necessary to rely on consistent and comparable administrative data, based on a robust and coordinated framework of data collection; whereas the current available data collected by the Member States' law enforcement and justice authorities fail to reflect the full extent of intimate partner violence, as most Member States neither collect gender-segregated comparable data on gender-based violence nor do they recognise intimate partner violence as a specific offence;

Amendment

F. whereas, in order to address the issue of the eradication of gender-based violence, it is necessary to rely on consistent and comparable administrative data, based on a robust and coordinated framework of data collection; whereas the current available data collected by the Member States' law enforcement and justice authorities fail to reflect the full extent of intimate partner violence and its impact and long-term effect on both women and children, as most Member States neither collect gender-segregated comparable data on violence nor do they recognise intimate partner violence as a specific offence, which results in the grey zone representing the real prevalence and incidence of intimate partner violence being significantly unquantified and unmapped; whereas data is also lacking on the heightened risks and prevalence of domestic and intimate partner violence for specific groups, such as for disadvantaged or discriminated groups of women;

Motion for a resolution

G. whereas in some Member States intimate partner violence against women is often neglected and the default rule of joint custody appears to prevail in cases of child custody,

Amendment

G. whereas in some Member States intimate partner violence against women is often neglected and the default rule of shared custody or parental authority appears to prevail in cases of access, contact and visitation arrangements and decisions; whereas disregarding such violence can lead to dire consequences for women and children, which may escalate into femicide and/or infanticide; whereas victims of intimate partner violence need special protection measures; whereas the victims' situation is likely to worsen if they are economically or socially dependent on the perpetrator;

child custody, access, contact and visitation arrangements and decisions; whereas disregarding such violence leads to dire consequences for women and children, which may escalate into femicide and/or infanticide; whereas victims of intimate partner violence need special protection measures; whereas the victims' situation considerably worsens if they are economically or socially dependent on the perpetrator; whereas it is therefore essential to fully take into account this type of violence while deciding on separation and custody arrangements and to address allegations of violence before custody and visitation issues; whereas the courts of the Member States should ensure a comprehensive assessment under the "best interest of the child" principle, to determine custody and visitation rights, which includes hearing the child, involving all relevant services and psychological support and taking into account the expertise of all professionals involved;

Motion for a resolution

H. whereas the right of every child to maintain contact with both parents, implied in Article 8 of the ECHR and Article 9 of the CRC, may be restricted by the best interests of the child;

Amendment

H. whereas the best interest of the child should always be the primary consideration in all decisions concerning children, including family disputes and, therefore, the right of every child to maintain contact with both parents, implied in Article 8 of the ECHR and Article 9 of the CRC, should be restricted if necessary for the best interests of the child;

COMP 10

Recital H a (new)

2. Notes that, in principle, shared custody and unsupervised visits are desirable in order to ensure that parents enjoy equal rights and responsibilities, as well as to safeguard the best interests of the child; underlines, however, that intimate partner violence is clearly incompatible with shared custody and care, owing to its severe consequences for women and children, including the risk of extreme acts of femicide and infanticide; stresses that when establishing the arrangements for custody allocation and visitation rights, the protection of women and children from violence and the best interests of the child must be paramount and should take precedence over other criteria; stresses, therefore, that awarding exclusive custody to the non-violent partner, most frequently the mother, represents the best alternative in order to prevent further violence and secondary victimisation of the victims;

Amendment

2. Recalls that in all actions concerning children, their best interest must be the primary concern; recalls the right of the child who is separated from one or both parents to maintain personal relations and direct contact with both parents on a regular basis, except if it is contrary to the child's best interests; notes that, in principle, shared custody and unsupervised visits are desirable in order to ensure that parents enjoy equal rights and responsibilities, except if it is contrary to the child's best interests; stresses that it is contrary to those interests if the law automatically gives parental responsibilities to either or both parents; recalls that according to the CRC, assessing the child's best interests is a unique activity that should be undertaken in each individual case, in the light of the specific circumstances of each child; underlines that intimate partner violence is clearly incompatible with the best interests of the child and with (shared custody and care, owing to its severe consequences for women and children, including the risk of post-separation violence and the extreme acts of femicide and infanticide; stresses that when establishing the arrangements for custody allocation, access and visitation rights, the protection of women and children from violence and the best interests of the child must be paramount and should take precedence over other criteria; underlines, therefore, that the rights or claims of perpetrators or alleged perpetrators during and after judicial proceedings, including with respect to property, privacy, child custody, access, contact and visitation, should be determined in the light of women's and children's human rights to life and physical, sexual and psychological integrity, and guided by the principle of the best interests of the child<sup>1</sup>; stresses, therefore, that the withdrawal of the custody and visitation rights of the violent partner and awarding exclusive custody to the mother, if she is a victim of violence, can represent the only way to prevent further violence and the secondary victimisation of the victims; stresses that awarding all parental responsibilities to the one parent, must be accompanied by the relevant compensation mechanisms, such as social aid and priority access to collective and individual care arrangements;

14. Stresses the need to recognise the interconnectedness of criminal, civil and other legal proceedings in order to coordinate the judicial responses to intimate partner violence and to avoid discrepancies between judicial decisions that are harmful to children and women victims;

Amendment

14. Stresses the need to recognise the interconnectedness of criminal, civil and other legal proceedings in order to coordinate the judicial and other legal responses to intimate partner violence and suggests, therefore, that the Member States adopt measures to link the criminal and civil case of one family, so that discrepancies between judicial and other legal decisions that are harmful to children and victims can be effectively avoided; deplores the lack of provisional measures to protect victims and the lack of temporary mechanisms to suspend the parental authority of the violent parent during legal proceedings, which usually lasts for several years; calls on Member States to experiment with and develop such protective measures; calls to this end on Member States to organise training of all professionals, as well as volunteer workers involved in such proceedings, and to associate civil society organisations working with and for children and victims with these training courses; calls on the competent national authorities to improve coordination between courts by fostering contacts between prosecutors' offices so as to enable issues of parental responsibility to be resolved urgently, and to ensure that family courts are able to consider all issues relating to gender-based violence against women when determining custody and visitation rights ;
